Decides Action Might Embarrass Demo Lawmakers

WASHINGTON (UPI)-The Eisenhower administration has abandoned as politically unwise plans to pressure for new and stronger civil rights legislation in the session of Congress beginning Monday, t was revealed Saturday.

His officials said they believed that in view of the partisan racial rights squabble expected to break out in both Senate and House, such a move might be considered as a cynical attempt to embarrass the Democrats.

The Justice Department earlier had planned to make a renewed plea for some of its old civil rights proposals and to offer new ones. But sources said that this strategy. worked out by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and his close adviser, Atty. Gen. William P. The administration is reluctant to become embroiséd in such a situation. It has steadfastly claimed that it has posted a strong non-partisan civil rights record for which t has not been given full credit. 👶

This was underscored Satirday by Nixon's disclosure that Rogers has been meeting with the executives of chain stores with Southern outlets to try and convince them they should end discrimination against Negroes.

The administration's views came to light as Rogers received a report from Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr., who heads the Justice De-(Continued Page A-3, Col. 2)

L.G.C. Says: Student Mobs

- It seems every day's news tells of some gang of juveniles in trouble. All around the world we read of student demonstrations against government. It is doubtful many of the individuals involved are sure of what they are demonstrating for or against. They want to be treated as adults-but they act like gangsters and irresponsible juveniles. It may be they should be treated as adults and be required to pay the penalty charged to adults who destroy property and act in violation of laws.

· In one event recently, we read of an estimated 12,000 students rioting in Rhode Island because they could not get into a jazz show because it was already sold out; 125 persons were injured and the jazz festival was canceled. in Grand Lake, Colo., 200 people, again mostly college students, rioted, poured gasoline in the street and set fire to it because the tavern operators closed their bars ahead of regular closing time.

In a New York high school the principal was booed at graduation ceremonies. The ceremony was canceled because the so-called high I. Q. students disliked the principal and acted as hoodlums. Then we had the 200 students rioting in San Francisco where the Congressional Un-American Activities Committee was holding hearings. Many of them were jailed, but let off by the judge.

These are but a few examples of incidents occurring all over the nation. There is good reason to believe many of these riots are caused by Communists who incite them and make dupes of the youngsters. But the young people are not Communists. They are juveniles who have grown up lacking in training in what are good manners and responsibility to the country they shame.

The noisy demonstrations at our two conventions were largely made up of organized mobs of students. They had few convictions but they like to demonstrate. In doing so they open their ranks to the sordid elements made up of Communists and so-called "liberals" who would destroy what we have.

The teenage gangs from high school are increasing at alarming rates. They present a police problem in all parts of the nation. They are a menace to decency and the safety of our communities. They are not only from lower income families. Many of their members are from our so-called best families. It is time their families and schools recognize their responsibilities toward their young people and their communities. The young hoodlums not only demand the freedom of adults, they demand more freedom than is given any adult, Unless they act as responsible citizens they should be deprived of some of the privileges they deny to others by their stupid lawless-

Archives of the two na tional committees indicate each has been called upon to fill a vice presidential nomination over the years but have never had to name a new top man.

THE DEMOCRATIC Party manual provides that in case of "death, declination or resignation" of any nominee of the convention that members of the national committee may name a successor.

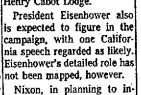

Each state or territory has the same number of delegate votes as at the national convention and these are cast by its members on the national committee. This would be 1,521 votes this year with 761

Kennedy, Truman Make Up, Plan Whistle-Stop Campaign

, HYANNIS PORT, Mass (29) -A whistle-stop campaign tour by Sen. John F. Kennedy and former President Harry S. Truman, the old Maestro of the trains who thought Kennedy was too young, is in the works.

Mutual friends who helped seal the breach between the 43-year-old Democratic presidential nominee and the 76-year-old Truman are working on it now and said both men like the idea.

Kennedy has announced he will visit Truman in Independence, Mo., about Aug. 21, and they are expected to talk it over then. There aren't many things Truman likes better than what he calls a "give 'em hell" speech-making tour, orating from the rear platform of a train.

Japan Press Hits Anti-U.S. Conference

TOKYO (UPI) - Japanese newspapers and political groups assailed Saturday the sixth annual anti-nuclear bomb conference in session here for its pro-Communist, anti-American tone.

The conference, which opened formally Saturday, has heard anti-American outbursts and charges of U.S. war mongering. Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's missile threats were ignored.

Chief object of Japanese wrath was Liu Ning-yl, a Chinese Communist described by newspapers here as a "labor agitator" who has sought to turn the conference into a forum for anti-American propaganda.

The anti-nuclear conference was marked by a parade of bomb-scarred victims of Hiroshima before the 111 delegates.

The meeting opened with a brief but stormy demonstration outside the conference hall by the ultra-right wing "Greater Japan Patriotic Society" which shouted anti-Communist slogans over loudspeakers.

method does not provide permanent cure, however.

The reaction is marked mainly by an immediate severe anxiety and a conviction of impending death. It may also include mental confusion, hallucinations and prickling sensations on the skin.

Thirty-three cases of the reaction are reported in the journal Lancet. The reaction lasts from a few minutes to an hour. Afterward, exhaustion may be felt for days. The reaction occurs in three out of every 1,000 penicillin injections, researchers report. It is 18 times more common than the shock-like reaction sometimes produced

By TERRY KOUNS

A dark-eyed Turkish beauty, blaming her country's political problems for her delay, finally arrived in Long Beach Saturday to complete the roster of 52 contestants in the International Beauty

But 19-year-old Guler Kivrak almost lost her potential right to the victor's crown because of her country's travel restrictions.

She recounted that since the recent student riots in Turkey, Turks are issued passports only if they need to travel for "very important" reasons.

Apparently, government officials didn't think that possibility of acquiring the title of Miss International Beauty was urgent enough to warrant a passport.

MISS TURKEY said she originally was supposed to leave her home in Istanbul on Wednesday, but that, because of passport difficulties, she couldn't get a plane to Paris, until Friday.

PACIFIC JUST COULDN'T RESIST

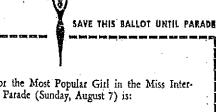

As one of the pretty guests at a formal dress dinner party at the Lafayette Hotel for Miss International Beauty pageant contestants, Miss South Pacific (Patricia Apoliona) just couldn't resist the music when the Hawaiian orchestra began playing. She promptly broke into a hula dance for the crowd -which found Miss South Pacific irresistible, too.

UNCAGED MONKEYS HAVE FUN

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)-The monkey business isn't quite over today at the Vilas Park Zoo, despite the fact that hunger got the best of some of them.

Thirty-six rhesus monkeys boited their cage Thursday night by more or less picking the lock, and 15 of the frisky fellows continued to frolic in nearby trees and bushes Satur-

. Zoo officials got 21 of the $85-apiece monkeys back by putting food in large trap boxes.

Authorities still are trying to figure out a way to get the rest back. Two methods-shooting them or using tear gas were ruled out because as one official put it: "They cost $85

And the monkeys still on the lam were not without an audience.

A partisan crowd cheered the escapees' antics in treetops 60 feet overhead and gave little encouragement to zoo guards who were trying to get the bouncing group down,

Spy's Parents Leave Today for Trial

NORTON, Va. (A)-A middle-aged couple who admittedly don't like to travel far from their home in the southwest Virginia hills leave today on the longest and most distressing trip of their lives.

Their destination is Russia and the spy trial of their only son, Francis Gary Powers.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers said Saturday they hope to arrive in Moscow before their son goes on trial Aug. 17 They will be accompanied by Sol W. Cury, home-town friend and adviser.

Even as the elder Powers announced the departure date, the State Department in Washington released notes showing the Russians' flat refusal to allow American attorney to take part in the trial. The United States charged Russia with making almost hysterical efforts "to inflame public opinion" before the trial begins.

Youth Catches 5 Leaping From Fire

jumped from a second-story window into the arms of Tommy Speranza, their 16year-old uncle Saturday while fire swept the home they were visiting.

Two of the children-Gordon Rensik, 11, and his brother Jeffry, 7-were hospitalized with first-degree burns. Their mother, Mrs. Irene Rensik and her infant son, Robin, escaped down a stairway.

Mrs. Marsha Black of Syracuse, N. Y., and her infant daughter, Chris Ann, and Tommy's 14-year-old sister, Kay, also used the stairway.

Authorities said Tommy led the five children to a window, kicked it out and dropped to the ground, then caught them as they jumped. In addition to Gordon and Jeffry, they were Terry, 3, Tommy, 5, and Ricky, 18 months.

NEW YORK (A)-Three sisters and a girl visiting them escaped serious injury Saturday when they leaped 40 feet from a blazing fourth-story apartment to the pavement.

The sisters 5-year-old brother also jumped, and was caught by a husky laborer, Ernest Blair.

The fire gutted the Harlem tenement occupied by Jeannette Burgess, 24, her sisters Lucreta, 16, and Geral dine, 10, and the brother, Daniel. The Burgesses and the visitor, Gloria Morton, 9, were taken to Harlem Hospital, where their conditions were described as "not serious."

Polish-Born U.S. Soldier Vanishes

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)-The U. S. Army dis closed Saturday that a Polish-born American soldier has vanished from his military intelligence unit near Frankfurt.

The disclosure was made by an Army spokesman after the Communist East German news agency D.N.B. reported that a U. S. "secret service agent" had defected to the U. S. Army headquarters at Heidelberg identified the missing soldier as Specialist Vladimir Sloboda, 33, a native of Poland who became a U. S. citizen though naturalization

A spokesman said Sloboda held a minor position as in Frankfurt. He said no documents were missing from the limited files to which Sloboda had access.

ARKANSAS GIVES FAUBUS an overwhelming victory at the polls, Houston votes against school Integration, and whites flog two Negroes in Alabama.

It begins to look as if the cause of tolerance, civil rights, and good relations between the races is losing ground instead of going forward in the South-and then suddenly out of the gloom comes a broad ray of

Down in Tennessee, the voters reject a mossbacked, reactionary segregationist, who campaigned against civil rights, and re-elect a southern liberal, Sen. Estes Kefauver.

SEN KEFALIVER DIDN'T merely squeeze through. He won by a landslide victory in what was supposed to be a tight contest.

A rule of thumb in southern politics in the past has been that racial bigotry can do the candidate no harm and probably will do him a great deal of good.

The arguments may be offered that there were other issues and that Sen. Kefauver had the advantage of years of national publicity.

But the point is that if racial bigotry were a potent political weapon, Sen. Kefauver would have been

The vote was either a deliberate rejection of such bigotry or a sign that Tennessee doesn't consider a strong so called states rights plan to be the prime qualification for public office.

At least, the voters weren't disturbed enough about Sen. Kefauver's views to toss him out of office and replace him with a man who took loud and strong exception to those views.

The contest had been billed as one in which Sen. Kefauver was fighting for his political life. It was his biggest triumph. This is progress.

AFTER WINNING RE-NOMINATION, Sen. Kefauver declared:

"(The vote) makes it clear that the detractors of the South who tried to say that we are a backward people have been proven wrong. . . .

"The South will continue to move forward in the mainstream of American civilization."

We don't agree that a single election proves that the entire South has had a change of heart. But it is an accumulation of small victories that changes the face of things. The battle for social justice in the South will be won by a constant exertion of moral pressure at a number of points. That pressure has made a significant impression in Tennessee.

JACK ANDERSON

Budget Boss Happy to End Bank Career

(EDITOR'S NOTE-While Drew Pearson is on a brief vacation, his column is written by his associate, Jack

WASHINGTON-Budget boss Maurice Stans has life or death power over the millions spent by the Eisenhower administration; his specialty is watching pennies for the White House.

But in Chicago, he recently found himself in control of the old Southmoor Bank, infiltrated by racketeers; which was involved in the notorious Orville Hodge scandal.

THE SOUTHMOOR BANK, now called the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago, was organized in 1946 by Lionel Ives, alias Lionel Isaacs, a Chicago underworld figure, and Leon Marcus, who was taken for a ride in gang-land style by professional killers three years ago.

At one time, the Southmoor Bank held trusts which Marcus established to conceal the true underworld ownership of two notorious gambling casinos, Ralph's Place and The Fort, near Glenview, Ill.

The bank finally was forced to change its name, although it never changed directors, after it cashed $600,000 in fraudulent state warrants for Illinois State Auditor Orville Hodge, who embezzled a whopping $2,500,000 in Illinois state funds.

But only the bank's president, Edward A. Hintz, was sent to jail with Hodge. The directors stayed on.

THE MAN WHO BROUGHT IKE'S fiscal watchdog into the bank was Washington financier John Dalton Jr., who heads the Daiton Finance Co., a loan company with offices in the Washington suburbs.

Dalton had been approached by the bank's new president, Lewis Corrington, and by night club operator J. Jay Schetz, part owner of Chicago's Chez Parce night spot, with an offer to buy controlling interests in the bank.

Dalton borrowed $450,000 from Chicago's National Boulevard Bank to buy a 50 per cent interest, installed himself as chairman of the board, and changed the bank's name

To secure the loan, Dalton persuaded like's budget boss to guarantee it, in effect, through the family-owned Stans Foundation, a non-profit charitable foundation.

Dalton put up the bank stock as collateral and gave Stans 25,000 shares in the Dalton Finance Co. (worth $37.-500) for risking the family capital.

HOWEVER, DALTON DID NOT pay Corrington and Schetz as much as they had demanded as a finder's fee. After Dalton moved into control of the bank, he also discovered that Schetz had been granted a $120,000 loan, the bank limit, and was paying no interest.

Dalton promptly called in the loan, and became involved in a corporate battle for control of the bank with Corrington, Schetz, and a Chicago lawyer named Maurice Unfortunately for Dalton, he had agreed as part of the original deal to keep the old Southmoor directors. They now voted him out as chairman of the board. He also defaulted on a $5,000 interest payment to the Boulevard Bank, which called in the loan.

Since Dalton had pledged his stock, this put the Stans Foundation in control of the controversial bank.

At this point, the Sénate Banking Committee started investigating the deal. In a panic, White House aides called Stans, told him to get rid of his banking interests at once.

Stans phoned Dalton and warned that he would have to pull out of the bank. He gave Dalton time to raise the money to pay off the loan and release Stans from his obligation. To his great relief, Stans is now out of the banking business.

Ike Speech at Chicago Whets Appetite for Campaigning

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE AND WILLIAM BROOM

WASHINGTON-The capital munched on convention left-overs last week and eagerly awaited the return of the all-star cast which will whip up the next political drama when Congress reconvenes tomorrow.

With the principals absent-President Eisenhower in Newport, Vice President There a host of supernumeraries and tough field commanders shuffled lists, juggled date. boxes of indexed cards, and laid out the plan of battle for autumn according to policies laid down by the candidates.

THERE WAS A FLURRY of speculation about the role President Eisenhower will play in the campaign. It's certain he'll make at least six speeches, and his success at the GOP convention in Chicago whetted his appetite for more. The vacation White House piqued curiosity by hinting the President has a real master-stroke up his sleeve. The possibility was raised that Ike may combine his speech-making with trips to inspect important defense installationsmissile sites, nuclear sub bases and the like.

ADMINISTRATION OFFICIALS in the Commerce and Labor departments are anxiously scanning their statistics for optimistic indicators of an upsurge in the economy during the campaign. Spotty unemployment has them vorried, although the forecast for September is a moderate increase in new jobs. The chief political worry is that most of the job slack exists in key states that probably will decide the election-aircraft centers in St. Louis and California, steel layoffs in Chicago and Pittsburgh, rail layoffs in Pennsylvania and

"He also perfected a skill he was developing, perhaps unconsciously, as an undergraduate. He has a fantastic capacity to communicate with people eye to eye, shoulder to shoulder."

Nixon's drama coach, Dr. Albert W. Upton: "He was one of our first successful actors. I can't say that I would have singled him out as a potential candidate for the presidency or any high office for that matter. But I wouldn't have been surprised if, after college, he had gone on to New York or Hollywood looking for a job as an actor."

Wallace J. (Chief) Newman, Nixon's football coach: "He played tackle and played it well, but the kid was just too light. . . . He was wonderful for morale because he'd sit there and cheer the rest of the guys and tell them how well they'd

IN THAT EVENING of reminiscing on Whittier's Hadley Field, one wondered how many times the young Nixon had clattered in football cleats down the steep steps from Wardman's Gymnasium-and back up after an untried Saturday afternoon.

Whatever his feeling then, his humor last Tuesday night found words to delineate the change wrought in 26 years. Noting the assembled members of his old football team, gathered on the sidelines to pay tribute to dents in 39 years of his teaching who kept the hometown Quaker boy, grocer's son who was now the Republican nominee for President of the United States, Nixon said:

Hot Debate Expected on Smog Rule

LOS ANGELES (UPI) spirited debate is expected Tuesday when the County Board of Supervisors considers a proposal by the Western Oil and Gas Assn. to relax Smog Rule 62.

A legal opinion released by County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy Friday stated that the proposal was unconstitutional on the grounds that the amendment to the rule 'would deny equal protection of the laws" to other industries. The amendment assertedly would also constitute an unreasonable exercise of police power.

Rule 62 prohibits the burning of high-sulphur fuel oil from May to October, the season of greatest smog.

THE OIL COMPANIES proposed that the ruling, known as the "clean-fuel rule," be amended so that oil may be burned throughout the year unless one of two specified conditions occurs: that the amount of sulphur dioxide in the air actually exceeds a given amount defined by the state or that three particular weather conditions occur simultaneously The Kennedy opinion set forth that the companies have not "alleged facts sufficient to legally justify special treat-ment for fuel users."

The opinion also stated that weather forecasts are not accurate enough to serve as a fair basis upon which to control the burning of fuel.

Johnson Helps Kennedy Little in Virginian Poll

CUCKOO, Va .- Down here in Louisa County, many voters care not at all that Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson is the Democratic vice-presidential candidate.

If Sen, John F. Kennedy expects the cowboy-hatted Texan to round up Southern Democrats who strayed to the Republican side in 1952 and 1956, he'll have to look elsewhere in Dixie. Earl Long and Foe in Row

FLORIEN, La. (UPI)-U. S. Rep. Harold McSween and ex-Gov, Earl K, Long, fighting viciously for a congressional post, stood in the sun and screamed at each other Saturday after an accidental meet-

Trading yells of "Shame on you," McSween, the incumbent, accused Long of selling out his famous brother Huey, and Long accused McSween of theft and political skull-

Their paths crossed in this little sabine parish community. Long, 64, saw McSween, 30, in his car and issued a challenge. "Come on up here right now," he bellowed. The crowd of 100 craned around to see who had drawn Earl's ire "Use my sound equipment and tell them about those checks. Tell them about the stripteasers. I never stole a nickel in my life."

LONG HAS accused Mc-Sween of mishandling federal checks, and McSween has pointed out Long's friendship with various stripteasers.

McSween walked to the microphone as Long stalked off into the crowd.

McSween is seeking re-elec tion in his runoif battle with Long to represent the Eighth District of Louisiana In the House of Representatives.

McSween accused Long of a iake sample ballot in 1932 to try to defeat his brother Huey, the famed

Kingfish,
"Why did you testify against Huey?" demanded Mc-Sween. Long testified against his brother in impeachment proceedings in the state legislature when Huey was governor. He didn't get impeached.

Long shouted, "I did not do it, and shame on you for stealing those checks.'

"I DID not do that either," countered McSween

'You damn sure did,' snorted Long.
McSween has been calling his opponent "Earl K .-- for Kangaroo - Long." He says Huey announced that the K in Long's name—actually for Kemp — stood for Kangaroo after Earl turned against him

He has told audiences that it is the "responsibility" of voters to keep Long out of Washington to "keep him from bringing further dis honor to Louisiana."

Lowe Rambles to 105-Yard Teedee on First Kickoff

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH

An electrifying 105-yard touchdown burst by Paul Lowe on the opening kickoff of the first American Football League game ever played in Southern California sparked the Los Angeles Chargers to a 27-7 decision over the New York Titans Saturday night in the Coliseum.

The 27,778 fans hadn't even adjusted their binoculars before the onetime Centennial High star had presented Sid Gillman with slx points on his first play as Charger

The Chargers posted 14 points on the scoreboard in the game's first five minutes. After Lowe's thrilling romp, quarterback Jack Kemp climaxed a 78-yard drive minutes later with a 24-yard keeper play around right end, plunging head-first into the end zone from the grasp of two

Lowe's Long Gallop Sensational

Lowe's sensational burst to open AFL competition was something from a Hollywood script writer's dream; The former Oregon State ace scooped up Bill Shockley's long kickoff five yards behind the Chargers' goal line, then stormed up the middle of the field.

Lowe cut across to the right sidelines at the 20-yard line, then shook off Titan tacklers until he reached the midfield stripe. At that point he had a clear field to the goal line.

Former Navy All-American Bob Reifsnyder converted, his kick hitting the cross bar but bouncing over.

After Long Beach's Henry Wallace kicked off, the Titans went no place in their first series of downs and kicked to Ron Waller, who returned eight yards to the The busy Waller picked up four yards around right end, then Kemp gained 11 yards with a pass to Royce Womble. Howie Ferguson picked up two yards off tackle, then the Chargers got a major break from the officials. Kemp passed incomplete, but interference by safetyman Corky Tharp was detected and the Chargers gained. 16 yards when the ball was put down on New York's 45. Ferguson, the bruising fullback who cracked Ram lines for five years when he played with Green Bay, galloped around left end for 15 more yards, then Waller added another five on a pitchout around right end.;

Kemp Scampers to TD on Rollout

Ferguson crunched for another yard, then Kemp came through with his big run of the evening. The former Occidental star, who completed only eight of 20 passes in the first half, slipped the ball alongside his right hip and rolled out around his own right end. Scooting like a halfback, Kemp weaved through the Titan secondary and climaxed the well-executed run with his leap into the end zone. Reifsnyder again converted. The Chargers completely dominated the rest of the half. Reifsnyder attempted a 39-yard field goal, but the boot was yards short. At the end of the first quarter, the Chargers had banged down to New York's eight-yard line, but a 15-yard penalty spuffed that threat. New York's only move came midway in the second quarter, when a Kemp pass was intercepted on the Chargers' 36 and returned to the Los Angeles 9-yard line by Roger Donnahoo, The tough Charger line held New York to six yards in three plays, then ex-SC star Jim Sears recovered Pete Hart's fumble on the four.

Titans Score With 3 Mins. Left

The Chargers pushed their lead to 20-0 early in the third quarter, A 64-yard march was climaxed when Kemp passed 11 yards to Royce Womble on the right sidelines and the former Baltimore Colt fell into the corner of the end zone. Reifsnyder's conversion try was

New York's only points went on the hoard after 12 minutes into the final quarter when third string quarterback Dick Jamieson, fading back to pass, spotted nary a Charger defender on the entire right side and scampered easily six payoff yards around his right flank. Shockley booted the conversion. With nine seconds to play, the Chargers registered their final points. Sub quarterback Bob Laraba, emulating Kemp, rolled out to his left side for a one-yard touchdown. Gillman praised his entire fleet of running backs and singled out defensive men Volney Peters, Charlie Brueckman, Hubert Bobo and Jesse Thomas for outstanding ef-

Dodgers Get 13 Hits, Lose

Phillies Win on 4 Safeties

By GEORGE LEDERER

PHILADELPHIA - The Dodgers left enough men on base to start a new franchise Saturday night in blowing a 3-1 decision to Robin Roberts and the Philadelphia Phillies.

. Thirteen Dodgers played the parts of lost sheep who couldn't find their way home as Roberts went the distance against the world champlons for the first time in two years. He allowed 13 hits and two walks, yet tossed a string of goose eggs until Norm Larker singled home a run with two out in the ninth in-

While the veteran Roberts was in constant difficulty, young Stan Williams permitted only four hits, but was a tough luck loser for the fourth time. His other losses were to Pittsburgh, 2-1 and 3-0, and to the Phils, 2-0.

ED ROEBUCK retired the last six Phils in order after Williams was lifted for a hitter in the seventh inning. The defeat dropped the fourth place Dodgers 61/2 games behind league leading Pittsburgh and marked the first time since June 20-21 that the champs have dropped two in a row. They had won 26 of their last 37 games.

Catcher Clay Dalrymple, one of a half dozen outstandall the margin he needed with a home run in the second inning. Dalrymple's fourth homer of the year accounted for two unearned runs after Charlie Neal booted Ken Walters', grounder with two out dropped John Roseboro's toss not charged with an error.

Dalrymple again playing a third to end the inning. Walls collected two of the tie. The Giants then went Dick Stuart, batting for

Hose End 5-Game Loss Streak, 9-2, as Landis, Score Sparkle

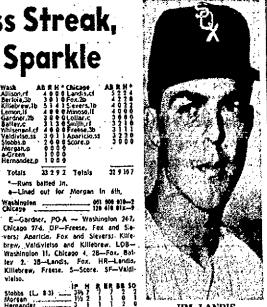

CHICAGO (P)-Jim Landis, his center field job in Walis Jeopardy, hit a two-run homer and a two-run triple Saturday in a 9-2 victory over Washington which snapped a five-game Chicago White Sox losing streak.

Shortly before the game, the Sox announced the purchase of centerfielder Floyd Robinson from San Diego and the move apparently stirred Landis who started the day with a 232 average. Landis, usually a superb delensive man, also had been having trouble in the field.

The victory went to starter Herb Score and enabled the White Sox to maintain their one-half game lead over third-place Baltimore which defeated Cleveland 5-2.

THE WHITE SOX scored a run in the first on a double by Nellie Fox and a single by Roy Sievers and made it 3-0 in the second when Landis whacked his seventh homer in the upper deck.

Four more Chicago runs came in the fourth when Landis and Fox both tripled, driving starter Chuck Stobbs from the mound and tagging him with his third defeat

Baltimore Helped by Rock's Rock

CLEVELAND (UPI)-Third baseman Rocky Bridges dropped a wind-blown pop fly with the bases loaded and two out in the seventh inning Saturday, and the Baltimore Orioles turned two gift runs into a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Jack Harshman pitched fine ball for the Indians until the seventh and had a 2-1 lead.

But after the Orioles loaded the bases, Jackie Brandt lifted a high pop fly to the left of the pitcher's box, and Bridges raced across only to drop the ball. Two runs scored to put the Orioles in front.

The Indians had taken a 2-1 lead in the bottom of the fourth on a homer by Mike De la Hoz, a walk to Vic Power and singles by Jim Martin to Giles: Piersall and Bridges.

Post-Olympic meet quotes:

HERSCHEL SMITH

Lauds L.B. Crowd

"Long Beach dld a magnificent lob of promoting and conducting the pre-Olympic Games meet. The affair was both an artistic and financial success-and everyone on the Olympic Games Committee is happy over the outcome." — Mike Portanova, Southern California Olympic Committee official.

"Long Beach people responded terrifically to the appearance of our Olympic team. The crowd turnout was outstanding, especially in view of a competing football game in which Long Beach boys were destined to be the stars."-Herschel Smith, meet direc-

"This Long Beach track is very good, contrary to what I had been led to believe. It certainly was a great improvement over the track we used last week in Eugene, Oregon." - Larry Snyder, head coach, U. S. Olympic team,

"Any chances of getting next week's meet (scheduled for Mt. San Antonio College) switched here, too? I think this is a wonderful track. The atmosphere is exciting, too."-Ralph Higgins, asst. U. S. Olympic team coach.

"I'd like to use this Long Beach track all the time. It's perfect for me the way the throwing area is laid out. I could have set a world record tonight (Friday) if my form hadn't been way off. Even so, this track is laid out so well for me that I almost did set the record even with bad form."-Hal Connolly, world hammer throw champion.

"This seems like a pretty good place for a track meet, but how come you've got stands only on one side? Did the folks run out of dough when they built the stadium?"-Don Bragg, world pole vault champion.

"Veterans. Stadium reminds me of the Coliseum. When you walk to the top, you're too tired to enjoy the activity downstairs."—Veteran Los Angeles sports writer. Consensus: The Century Club promoted an outstandling meet, worthy of the U.S. Olympic team, Long Beach fans proved they were "major league" by their patronage. Reminder: Let's build stands on the other side of the stadium! Their absence is noted even by strangers.

SUNDAY MORNING QUOTATIONS: "Where does an upstart like Bill Fugazy come off trying to blackmail New York City by dangling the third Patterson-Johansson fight? Let him take it to Los Angeles. It'll be a break for New York fans, at that. They can see it on TV for from $3 to $10 instead of going for the up-to-$100 bite."-Dick Young, N. Y. Daily News.

"The Dodgers are a wonderful organization. They have to he if they put up with a big mouth like me, then sturn around and give me a job in the organization at my full baseball salary."—Carl Furillo.

"Nobody's going to score too much on us through the air. We've got a better defensive backfield than the Rams did in the years I was with them. This Henry Wallace may be one of the greatest defenders in the game atoday."-Glenn Holtzman, Charger end.

'I enjoyed playing my first pro grame as much as I did playing football in college. But pro practices are chorrible compared to college practices."—Chris Burford, ex-Stanford All-American and present Dallas Texan end.

MORE SUNDAY SERMONS:

"I look for one of the largest crowds in football history when we play SC at the Coliseum in November, This has to be the biggest game on Washington's schedule since pre-war days."-Jim Owens, Washington coach.

"I feel like I'm back in the Marine Corps, I rented a plane for my tour of American Football League training camps and piloted it over 8,000 air miles. I logged 50 Shours' flying time and touch down at 22 airports, some worse than landing strips in the South Pacific."-AFI Commissioner Joe Foss, World War II flying ace.

"I'm serious about my demands that Joe Foss slapdown the Chargers and Dallas for starting practice early. Contest of Legion Tourney Tonight Nobody should be allowed to get away with shenanigans in the AFL."—Harry Wismer, N. Y. Titan owner.

"I know they're looking for an excuse to bump me off the Olympic team. Well, I guess I gave them one to-- Dave Davis, No. 3 Olympic team shotputter whose best throw in Long Beach was seven feet less than winner (and present alternate) Bill Nieder's.

Once Over Lightly By DAYE LEWIS

Baugh Idolized by Players in NFL

When Sammy Baugh bedded down his New York Titans in Pasadena earlier this week, he was just a forward pass from the training camp of the team with which he gained football immortalitythe Washington Redskins.

Sam will never forget his first contact with George Marshall, the fiery owner of the Redskins.

After Marshall chose Baugh in the draft he set about to milk every bit of publicity from his "cowboy" from Texas

And Baugh's Western -appearance-10 gallon hat and boots and checkered shirt-was strictly a Marshall invention.

The day before Baugh left for Washington in his rookie year, Marshall called him and said "get a 10 gallon cowboy hat and some real Texas boots.

said "Sure," "what size do you wear?"

"They're not for me," Marshall replied, "they're for you.

"Hey, that ain't in my contract," Sammy objected.

"I never wore such things in my life." "You get 'em and wear 'em. That's an order," Marshall snapped.

SAMMY BAUGH

Ex-Cowboy Star

So Sam arrived in Washington wearing the required costume and Marshall had a small army of cameramen on hand.

"He looked like the personification of every cowboy star who ever saddled a bronc . . . only more so," Marshall smiled as he recalled the event.

As soon as the last photog departed though, Baugh tore off the hat and removed the boots . . . "these things are killing me," he complained.

WITHIN A FEW YEARS, Sam actually did become a cowboy. With the money he carned in pro football, Sammy started putting together a 5,000-acre cattle ranch near Rotan, Texas, where he still resides.

Only one day after Sammy had become one of the giants in pro ball, somebody noted an item in a paper that he had won a calf-roping contest in a Texas rodeo roping and throwing a calf in 19 seconds.

Marshall almost fainted as he had visions of broken legs and arms. He immediately got Sammy on the telephone in Texas and yelled "what are you trying to do, wreck yourself the Redskins and me, too? I forbid you to fool around with those horses and steers and stuff. You

"It was your idea," Sammy drawled. "You wanted a cowboy and now you got one.'

Most fans don't remember-and Sam himself would like to forget it-but Baugh was a cowboy star in the movies, too.

AFTER HE BECAME the toast of pro football with his spectacular passing feats, Sam went to Hollywood and made a movie called "King of the Rangers."

It was a 20-chapter serial of questionable dramatic quality, but long on action. Baugh polished off scores of villains, rescued many damsels in distress and picked up a sizable chunk of dough for his efforts.

Sam often said that he doubted if it really was worth it because of the "riding" he took skin teammates.

The Washington theater that booked the film ran it during the football season and naturally made the most of its star. Everyone was advised well in advance that "King of the Rangers," starring "Washington's own Sammy Baugh," was being shown.

THE THEATER showed a chapter every Saturday . and every Saturday afternoon found the 30-man Redskin squad in attendance.

Baugh also was present, having been "persuaded" by his mates by threats of physical violence if he didn't go with them.

At the proper moments the Redskins would make loud comments on the hero's performance, while Sam squirmed, "It was awful," Sam recalls.

Each new Baugh feat on the screen would be greeted with sighs of admiration from the squad. Baugh slugging the villain was cheered madly. Baugh mounting a horse was applauded vigorously. And Baugh pressing awkward kisses on the heroine's lips would bring the house down.

And as the team emerged from the theater after each new chapter, somebody would always turn to the blushing Baugh and say . . . "Gosh, Sam, you sure were

THE PLAYERS, OF course, idolized Baugh. He was always ready to lend a helping hand to a teammate. It was said around the NFL that many of Sam's moves were dictated by sentiment.

Any player who had been looking bad found Baugh calling his signal frequently in an attempt to make him look better and to change the boos to cheers.

A sculptor finally cast his throwing arm and hand in bronze and Marshall, pointing to it, said, "There's the hand that rocked the National Football League and made it the great league it is today."

AFL officials are hoping that Sam's presence will help the new loop someday achieve the same remarkable growth experienced by the NFL.

San Francisco scored first in the second quarter. On a Dallas punt attempt, rookie center Jim O'Hara snapped the ball over kicker Dave Sherar's head into the end land on the right side, Brewer would have to have his head turned. Pictures verify this.

SHERAR recovered the ball, but was tackled by Gordon Kelley of the 49ers for a two-point safety.

This must surely be the first time that a man started a fight when he was looking away from his opponent.

Martin's demands for a hearing before Warren Giles draw little sympathy. He says' "I think Giles should know most of the recent scraps I've been involved in were not my fault." Sure, Billy. Same with all those brawls in the American League. Probably wasn't even your fault that night with the Yankees in the Copacabana when the fist fight broke out with a customer.

People with a record like Martin's, and the evidence against him in the Brewer case, make themselves look a little silly by demanding a hearing. Billy's already admitted in a magazine article, some time ago, that both he and Jim Piersall are temperamentally unsuited to baseball.

I haven't talked to anyone yet who thinks Billy isn't alvery lucky boy to get away with a $500 fine and a fiveday suspension. If I were Martin, I'd play it cool and He's apt to get riled during that hearing and take a poke at Giles. Then he would really be up the creek. * * WHEN CASEY STENGEL was managing at Oakland, he "discovered" Martin. Case loved the kid and the way he scrapped. "Billy the Kid," they called him. After Martin moved on to the Yankees, and ditto for Stengel, Case made no secret of his admiration for the scrappy little tyke. Maybe this was the beginning of Billy the Fighter. If it drew approval from Stengel, it must be OK, Martin probably figured. So in a way, unwittingly, Casey might be partially responsible for a lot of Martin's subsequent troubles.

I AGREE WITH Lou Boudreau, who says Martin should be kept out of the lineup as long as his victim, Brewer, is out,

Of course, Richie Ashburn believes this may be illogical in some cases. "What if he killed a guy?" Ashburn

The SCWA will conduct the California freshwater preliminary on Sept. 17 and 18 in Lassen, Modoc, Shasta, Siskiyou, Tehama and Trinity Counties. DON CULPEPPER

The winner will be provided free transportation to Houghton Lake, Mich., where he will compete with the victors in other state preliminaries.

While at Houghton Lake, the state winners will be provided complimentary meals, rooms, boats, transportation and a beautiful plaque from President Eisenhower's People-to-People Sports Committee. The World Series, itself, is scheduled for Oct. 15 through 23.

The winner at Houghton Lake will recelve the Ford world championship tro-California fishermen will compete by fishing for trout, steelhead and salmon on Sept. 17, and for bass in Lake Shasta on Sept. 18. No entry fee is required: Only restrictions on tackle is that it must conform to fish and game laws. Any one wishing further information may write to John Reginato, director, Shasta-Cascade Wonderland Association, Tourist Information Center, Redding, Calif.

DISREGARD ANY RUMORS that Isabella Lake is to be drained so that work crews can remove stumps and trees which are prevalent on both arms of the lake. Harold Cate, project engineer for the dams that control the famous fishing lake, says that the level will be maintained at 35,000 acre feet-that's a surface acreage of more than 2,000-and that there is no plan to go below that figure.

There's a constant battle between the fishermen and general recreational boaters at Isabella over those stumps. Fishermen like 'em; boaters don't. As a matter of record, it might be pointed out that the dead trees have added tremendously to the fishing in Isabella. They can, of course, be dangerous to boaters who are out only. for speed and cruising. The underwater. growth in Isabella is mainly responsible

Last week's report showed that bass still were hitting early in the mornings and late in the afternoons. The fish were taking surface plugs, if worked by skillful anglers.

R. R. Zachary's 5-91/2 brown trout, caught a mile above the bridge in Kernville on the Kern River, could have won him a $2,200 boat in the trout derby except— he forgot to register.

AVALON, SEEKING MORE recognition from the outdoor-minded public, particularly fishermen, has set up a list of 30 prizes for several species of fish this year, and is encouraging all successful anglers to bring their fish to the weighing station at Catalina Island.

June Pollard, chairman of the Avalon Chamber of Commerce fishing committee, announced the tournament rules and regulations last week. Generally, those rules follow the same of the Tuna Club at Avalon and other big-game fishing clubs on the mainland.

Marlin, broadbill, albacore, white sea bass and tuna are the classifications. There is special division for outboards. The largest fish of any species (except shark) will qualify an outboard angler for the top

Competition for all trophies is limited to an area within 50 miles of Avalon. A fish weighed in at Avalon is automatically qualified for any club in Southern California. In other words, a member of the Southern California Tuna Club would not have to weigh his fish at Avalon and then rush across the channel to the Long Beach Marina for another weigh-in.

REPORTS LATE SATURDAY indicated that the red tide was beginning to clear along much of the Southern California coast. That should be good news to the surf fishermen. This strange condition of the ocean in hot weather actually didn't stop surf fishing, but, to many, it gave them no ambition to wade into the breakers and try for corbina, perch and other

George Clark, veteran member of the Southern California Tuna Club and a resident of Seal Beach, caught a limit of corbina Friday in front of his home. He said that he thought surf fishing was better this year than for a least a half-dozen previous George Sims, of Sims Bait and Tackle on Pacific Coast Hwy., has been catching limits of large corbina in the area below San Onofre for the last two or three weeks.

To fish that area, one must obtain a permit from the U. S. Marine Corps at Oceanside. The old permit station near San Clemente has been closed. Any one may obtain a permit from the USMC, but he must observe certain closed areas and regulations which the USMC imposes.

Joe's father and mother can remember when, because of his shyness, they would have to come to his rescue during a conversation with strangers and say: "What Joe means is this --." But no longer. Today, Joe can speak for himself-and does. Not that he is loud or talks too much, Always polite and tactful, he knows when to speak up-and what he says is usually worth hearing. In fact, his debating team hasn't lost a match all year. A change in Joe was apparent within a month after he became a newspaperboy. "Since you will need to know how to talk with people the rest of

6th Straight for Dotted Swiss

CHICAGO (A)-A California import, Dotted Swiss, owned by C. V. Whitney, Saturday won his sixth straight race by taking a 11/2 length decision in the $53,750 Laurance Armour Handicap at Arlington Park. The strapping son of Counterpoint, ridden by Willie Shoemaker and packing top weight of 122 covered the 11/8 in 1:50.

Second was Sunnyside Stable's Resolved, with Doug Dodson aboard, and third was Claiborne Farm's Dunce, the Arlington Park Cinderella horse ridden by Braulio Baeza.

Dotted Swiss returned $4.20, $3.20 and $2.40 to backers in the crowd of 24,461. Resolved paid $6.60 $2.40.

Dotted Swiss broke from the gate first and never was headed in scoring his eighth victory in 14 starts this year. The 4-year-old chestnut colt had won five consecutive victories at Hollywood Park, starting June 4 when he defeated Find at 1 1/16 miles and then piling up first in a mile allowance

BIENVENIDOS, AMIGOS! FIESTA FUN AWAITS YOU!"

Santa Barbara's Fiesta El Presidente George V. Castagnola and Senora Rena Castagnola extend traditional welcome to annual Fiesta activities. The Fiesta rulers pose before Queen of the Missions in Santa Barbara where Fiesta festivities will begin at twilight Wednesday, August 10.

Mercedes-BenzParty Prevues Fiesta Fun at Santa Barbara

Auto Editor

OFFICIAL PROCLAMATION

Amigos: Come my dear friends, to Santa Barbara's famed Old Spanish Days Fiesta under the August moon! This year of 1960, Fiesta will begin on the evening of Wednesday, Aug. 10, and end on Sunday, Aug. 14. You'll delight in the happy Fiesta mood, the carefree and gracious days of Early California that once again come to life during this historic celebration. You'll hear the bells of the Old Mission begin Fiesta, then you'll find yourself in our special little; world of dancing, singing, music, costumes, horses, tours, fireworks, entertainment, and, of course, the magnificent Parade. There'll be shows to see-romance-fun-Fiesta! May I look forward to seeing you in Santa Barbara during Old Spanish Days this August? Viva la Fiesta! Hasta

Signed, GEORGE V. CASTAGNOLA

Mr. Jim Duncan Retail Advertising Manager Independent, Press-Telegram Sixth and Pine Long Beach, California

Dear Mr. Duncan:

On Sunday, July 17, we ran a full page advertisement in your Southland Magazine to celebrate our fourth anniversary in

The response to the ad was fantastic. We had a customer count in excess of four hundred and fifty on Sunday and more than twice that number over the next four days. A week later, customers were still coming in with the ad in their hand; proof positive that our ad in Southland really hit the jackpot.

I should also like to mention that we maintained a sound profit margin on sale items and enjoyed a real surplus of tie-in sales.

We appreciate the friendly cooperation of your account executive and the Ad Plans Department in helping us to start our fifth year in a big way.

Sincerely,

Lee Wilkinson

Minnie Lacey-Baker

is GA 3-1487.

MINNIE LACEY-BAKER is associated with Sam L. Starr at 733 South Street, Long Beach, Mrs. Lacey-Baker is a native of Iowa but calls Akron, Colorado her home town. Her father, Joe Plummer, homesteaded there and she graduated from Washington County High School, after which she attended the University of Denver. Minnie was deputy County Assessor for Washington County several years. She came to Long Beach in 1923 and was an employee of Los Angeles County until her retirement in 1957. Since that time she has devoted her full time to real estate.

Mrs. Lacey-Baker has one son, Creighton, who is a graduate of Long Beach State College and is presently at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, with the Reserves. He and his wife Linda live in Lakewood.

Mr. Starr's office is in the heart of North Long Beach on the corner of Olive Avenue and South Street. His staff is very well acquainted with all parts of the city and Lakewood and invite you to give them a call for information about any part of this area. The number

NEW YORK - "Between '42 and '53—over 11 years— 1 made $4,000,000," Dick Haymes said. "Probably a a little more . . .

"I went through the stages of airplaines, big houses, boats - and taxes. Finally I was in such debt that every place I worked my salary was attached, I faced it for five years. But I just couldn't make it. I couldn't get out. Sp I filed bankruptcy . . .

And now, on Monday, the new Dick Haymes, with the debts washed out-all except the taxes, $40,000 due the U.S. alone - will start his comeback at the Roundtable, along with his attractive wife, Fran Jeffries.

Ayala-Hart Wed

In a double ring ceremony marked by quiet serenity Linda Louise Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Herschel Hart of Park Estates became the bride of Daniel R. Ayala, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Ayala of Roswell, N. M. The marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Hiram B. Crosby in St. Luke's Episcopal Church in the presence of 350 guests.

Given away by her father the bride selected a Cahill gown of white silk organza edged in Venetian lace for her wedding attire. A tiara of seed pearls held her veil of silk illusion, and Amazon lilies and bouvardia adorned the white prayer book she carried.

BRIDAL attendants, who wore turquoise organza, were her sister, Mrs. Jack Atwell, matron of honor, and Mrs. Robert Hall, Marie Stevens, Sally Word and Irene Morioka.

Jim Quast was invited to be best man; ushers were the bridegroom's brother-inlaw, Ferman Romero; cousin, Robert Ayala, Richard Eiles and Don Haskell. After exchange of vows the newlyweds greeted their guests at a reception in the Sunrise Room of Pacific Coast Club.

Story Book Theme for Annual Headdress Ball

Want to hear something that will go right to your head? Well, they've announced the theme for the always fabulous annual Headdress Ball, the big, big, big party each year presented by Long Beach Auxiliary to the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. That's such a weighty title I generally save it until last because it really takes so much energy to get it

At any rate, theme for the Oct. 15. party at the Lafayette will be "The Story Book Ball." That really throws the door Mad Haller wide open for imaginative headdresses. Thinking caps are now on all across town. Millie (Mrs. Frank Jr.) Vessels is general chairman and her co-chairman is Jane Rhorer who, as last year's chairman, will bring much know-how to her labors. Fran Cavaliere will chairman decorations work-and her gang is promising some best seller ideas for Story Book. Deanie (Mrs. Chris) Conway is in charge of reservations. Others of the committee who lunched and plotted at Petroleum Chib Tuesday, are Dorothy Ellery, Tabi Dorgan, Florence Cole, Betty Benwell, Curtyne Driscoll and Katherine Carlisle, auxiliary president. Toast Tells Engagement

News of the betrothal of Kay Carol Steltenkamp and David Gordon Berg was reyealed recently at a dinner party in the South Pacific Room, Allen Center Officers Club, when her father, Lt. Cmdr. Menard Steltenkamp, USN (ret), proposed a champagne toast to the young couple.

Mrs. Steltenkamp, the bride's mother, carried out the engagement theme in decor, using dainty placecards depicting a miniature hand and ring. Pink and white stock, carnations and bouvardia centered the festive table. The wedding date has been set tentatively for April.

The bride-elect, who, with her family resides at 233 Bay Shore Ave., was graduated from Wilson High School and her fiance from Poly High School Both Carolyn Marie Gregg daughter of Mr. and Mrs J. O. Gregg, recently exchanged wedding vows with Dermot Eckert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Slaight, of Long Beach.

For the double ring ceremony in Aloha Wedding Chapel, the bride chose a ballerina length Chantilly lace gown with scalloped neckline outlined in sequins and pearls. A shoulder length veil fell from a pearl crown. Carrying a bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis, centered with a white orchid, she was given in marriage by her father.

tions from the world's literature on gardens, plants and and in it we discover that men have squandered fortunes on plants, have risked death in China and scalping by Indians in North America out of curiosity and a passion for vegetation.

Today the Douglas fir is considered a fine healthy evergreen and nobody makes much of a fuss about it but David Douglas for whom it was named had a The Gardener's World, nasty brush with the Indicompiled and edited by Jos- ans while hunting for it. He

* * * *

HE RECOUNTS in his diary that while he was busy shooting down a few branches for study and measurement eight Indians came upon him all painted with red earth armed with bows and arrows, spears of bone and flint knives and seemed to be anything but friendly. Douglas cocked his gun pulled one of his pistols from his belt and stared them down.

When finally they retreated to fetch him some pine cones at his request and at his guns' point he beat it for safety. The intrepid fellow was killed in Hawaii in 1833 when he was trampled under the hooves of a wild bull at the age of thirty-six.

A botanist who had better luck with hooves was Ernest Wilson who in 1910 penetrated into Tibet in search of the Regal Lily. The flower grows in the desolate mountain regions of that country and he was arranging for the delivery of six or seven thousand hulbs. When the deal was set he and his bearer set out for the capital city of Szechuan.

Soon after starting they passed a mule train breaking camp that was headed their way. They went on ahead when suddenly there was a roar like a cataract and a huge rockslide came crashing down the mountain. Wilson was bowled over and presently discovered that the nail of his big toe was torn off, his leg broken in two places below the knee and the side of his calf badly lacerated.

THE BEARERS were trying to move him when the mule train of the morning appeared. The road, winding against the mountain face was too narrow for them to turn back, the drivers dared not wait for fear of another rock slide so Wilson lay across the road and about fifty mules stepped over them. He could only pray that their reputation for sure-footedness was not a myth.

He suffered agony until they could get him to a hospital and even then it was months before the leg was healed but he got his lily bulbs just the same and brought them back to Boston and now, thanks to his curiosity and courage millions of them bloom in American gardens.

There is a fine Chinese proverb about gardens although it is a little tough for women. "If you would be happy for a week take a wife; if you would be happy for a month kill a pig; but if you would be happy all your life plant a garden".

He interrupted me, "Why the 'Israels'?" he demanded. "Isn't Isaacs bad enough?"

And then there was the elaborate dinner party in the Adirondack home of a very wealthy Chicagoan who had purchased much of the jewelry of the Czar of Russia. During dinner he asked his wife to show us the gorgeous emerald necklace she was wearing, with the profile of members of the royal family cut into each stone.

ALSO SHE passed along for our inspection, the czarina's fabulous emerald and diamond ring which all the ladies tried on. As it left my hand and passed to several others, I noticed that my own diamond engagement ring was missing. I exclaimed in dismay. Immediately, at a signal from mine host, the room was filled with private detectives. My ring was found within that of the czarina's. But never in all my wonderful dinners with celebrities have I enjoyed any more than the joyous evening we spent recently with the incomparable soprano, Mary Costa, in her beautiful Beverly Hilis home.

Imagine the combination of rare southern hospitality (Mary comes from Knoxville, Tenn.), a garden that looks like the gardens of Fontainebleau, the enormous blue pool, great gnarled old olive trees, a high wall of white-washed brick as a back-drop, dramatized by sentinel cypresses, and beautiful Mary—assisted by her sweet mother—presiding as hostess.

DELICIOUS steaks were broiled by the pool by Mary's husband, Frank Tashlin, a celebrity in his own right as writer and producer. Laughter was hearty, delicious food was plentiful and the crescent moon dipped deeply golden into the azure pool.

We sat a long time in that lovely garden and to make a more perfect ending to an already perfect evening Mary sang for us.

AS TO flowers, they play a more important part in European life than they do here, according to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Assn. Not reserved for captivating a females fancy, they are the customary response to a dinner invitation in a European home.

Dinner itself, varies in time from country to counry. In warmer, more Latin places, everyone dines late. In colder spots, they gather at the dinner table earlier and right on time.

Take Sweden: In this country, there is no cocktail hour, but elaborate toasting goes on throughout the meal. The guest of honor is expected to propose a toast of thanks at the end of the festivities.

IN ENGLAND, the savory -a bit of cheese or fishis handed around after dessert and in France the salad follows the entree.

In every European country our method of switching fork from hand to hand is looked upon as sheer madness. For a month's jaunt abroad it is not worth the effort to master the practical left hand approach but it is a good idea to know a little abouthow to tackle the European sandwich. Served in a restaurant, a sandwich comes open-faced and is to be eaten with knife and fork-never picked up as here.

Daintily, of course, they are to be grasped between thumb and forefinger of the left hand and may be supported in the middle by the right hand. Dripping butter or sauce, they are raised above the mouth, and then allowed to slither down as gracefully as possible.

ALSO, holding one's hands in one's lap while eating is absolutely taboo. Both hands belong on the table's edge.

Another fairly common European custom is handshaking, both when you meet and part from your acquaintances. In Germany it is a serious business, not just a short shake --- but a real pumping motion. In Portugal, it is such an important part of daily life, that heads of businesses shake the hands of each of their employes every morning.

There are "on the street" customs to observe also. In Austria, it is quite all right to start a conversation in a public place such as a cafe or coffee shop. In Italy, on the other hand, the chaperone is still in fashion and casual meetings are viewed

After your first conversation with new Spanish friends, you are expected to state your name and address, thus offering your home to

IN MOST countries, apparel is a part of on-thestreet courtesy. Slacks, shorts, and sunback dresses are correct only at seaside resorts.

Who precedes whom is sometimes the reverse of Stateside custom, When entering a restaurant or cafe, the man always precedes to protect his companion from any unpleasantness that might be encountered, and to find the way to a seat.

On emerging, the woman has precedence, but waits at the door for her escort to

But most important is that simple "thank you" and "please," preferably in the language of the country you are, visiting. It will add warmth to your reception everywhere.

I think it is too bad that many young folks who WERE interested in sports drop them so early in life. Many women do this when their children arrive. They are so busy and have to plan in order to be away from home. Then, too, they be-come so emotionally involved with all the wonderful new experiences of motherhood that they allow the walls of their home to become their whole world.

AFTER having gotten out of the habit they often are shy about resuming the sport they liked or taking up a new one. They may even feel self-conscious (especially if they have gained some weight), about doing so. Usually when a woman is persuaded to take up.a new sport she wonders why in the world she had not done so before.

A life which has no sport for a hobby is almost sure to be lacking in exercise, especially outdoor exercise.

The beginning cook's first foray into the astounding world of the kitchen, afloat with gleaming utensits and equipment, emphasizes nothing but her own sense of inadequacy.

But, as basic cooking techniques are mastered, the beginning cook becomes braver. Before long, "Joy of Cooking" and "Fanny Farmer" are encompassed by a variety of other cookbooks -specialty, foreign, fun and travel.

Best of all, a person who enjoys cooking, reading about food and beverages, will find an intangible benefit: travel, both at home and abroad, becomes more rewarding. Good trenchermen

Concept

The all new Universal TwentyWyde is, according to Ted Cope, Sales Manager of Terra-Cruiser Trailer Coach Company of Downey, a revolutionary concept which could entirely change the accepted standards of mobile living.

A brain child of William "Bill" Whitaker, Terra-Cruiser general manager, the TwentyWyde sells for about the same price as any other mobile home 52 feet long, yet it has a 20 x 13-foot living room, and has the equivalent footage of a 65-foot job, 10

Says Whitaker: "The idea was to offer all the advantakes of an expanding mobile home with none of the disadvantages.

"This home has no cables, hydraulic or electric controls, nothing to get out of order or deteriorate, yet it can be completely expanded and set ip by two men in less than a alf day."

An aluminum awning, designed as an integral part of the Universal TwentyWyde, is preassembled at the factory, then disassembled and shipped with the Twenty-Wyde This can be reassembled with a minimum of ime and effort and assurance that if will fit and that no parts are missing. The new Universal Twenty-Wyde offers approximately 1,000 square feet of indoor ind outdoor living space, ye fits on the standard width mobile home lot and stil

Telecast of Parade Starts at 4

Ten hours of telecasts from the International Beauty Congress will blanket most of the state this week.

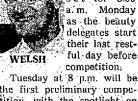

KTTV, channel 11, will originate the telecasts, which, will be fed to KTVU in the San Francisco-Oakland area and to KOVR in Stockton-Sacramento.

Coast-to-coast network tele-casts are out of the question for the same reason as in past years — the time differential would make the 10:30 to midnight shows screen from 1:30 to 3 a.m. in the east.

BILL WELSH will serve as commentator for all the telecasts starting today with the parade along Ocean Blvd. Live coverage will start at 4 p.m.

္အာ္က်ို့a n d continue antil about 6:30 p.m. :

"poolside breakfast" is set for 8:30 Monday as the beauty delègates start their last restful-day before tition, with the spotlight on the third of the delegates who in native costumes will be asked for brief speeches. (evening gowns, playsuits and na-tive dress will be worn in rotation this year). The "most popular girl in the parade" will be announced.

CHANNEL 11 cameras will move backstage at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday for interviews with preliminary winners in all three categories. Judges also will be interviewed.

Both Wednesday and Thursday telecasts will be from 10:30 to 11:30 p.m. for back-stage interviews with prelim-inary winners of the second and third competitions. The 15 semi-finalists will be in-troduced Thursday, and the winner of "Miss Friendship" will be announced.

Contest finals and the selection of Miss International Beauty of 1961 will be seen Friday from 10 p.m. until conclusion. The 15 semi-finalists will compete in each of the three categories, the judges will ballot, and the new beauty queen will be crowned.

Aims for Pilots

What TV's Sleuths Know About You!

NEW YORK (AP) --- Television which often may seem to ignore the tastes of its vast audience, really is trying frantically to find out our viewing perferences. A massentertainment medium, it does best wher, its programs are custom-tailored to certain types of spectators.

Taking polls and samplings often criticized and always with a certain margin of error may not be the best way of finding out, but is it the best available. And already it has turned up quite a lot about us.

THE INDUSTRY knows, for instance, that there are about 52 million TV sets in the nation which have a viewing audience of between 120 and 130-million.

It also knows that the average home set is in use almost six hours a day. And that adult women comprise, in terms of sheer numbers, the largest group of viewers.

If there were such a creature as a "typical viewer," it would be a housewife without outside employment, between 34 and 44 years of age, whose formal education ended with high school and whose family income is between $5,000 and $7.500 a year.

The National Broadcasting Co. recently ordered up an audience composition study covering the first week of

"I'm a natural for this show -I do a bubble dance."

March. It was concerned entirely with the number of viewers watching each set and further broke the perset audience into children under 13, teenagers, men and women 18 and older. LOCAL

THE STUDY came up with a finding that there are more women than any other group watching a program in any category except sports.

Women far outnumber men in watching westerns, mysteries, quiz and audience participation programs, variety shows and drama, according to the NBC study. It also confirmed the dark though that children will watch anything on TV-even documentary, news and inter-view shows, which gathered the smallest family group around each set. Teenagers are the least likely to be members of the viewing group.

So What Does It Take to Graduate?

'I may look like a woman, but I'm still a girl," says Annette Funicello, former "Mickey Mouse Club" child star who is a mature young lady of almost 18.

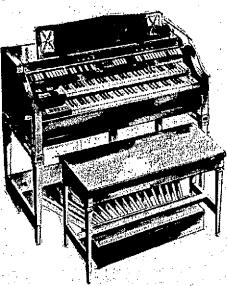

"My measurements are 36-22-36, which are sort of adult," she confesses, "But I have a baby face and producers say I haven't graduated to womanhood yet.

The millions of TV dinners sold each year to video viewers so they can watch and eat at the same time are a testimonial to the hardiness of the breed.

How can they blandly down their peas and carrots while on the screen a beaker of stomach acids eats through an announcer's handkerchief?

And how can they savor their sherbet while pain killer molecules activate a little valve in a cutaway section of somebody's abdomen?

No wonder Nikita Khrushchev was glad he had seen TV in this country. He went home convinced that we are rapidly falling apart.

And then there's the poor guy who likes Westerns with his wieners. He's determined that no TV commercial is going to give HIM an ulcer. He jumps up and turns off the set, then jumps back when he figures the nauseous blurb is over. But he gets an ulcer anyway, from all that jumping up and

BESIDES THE GASTRONOMIC TRAUMA, poor taste commercials create another problem. Many a hostess has blundered into a horrendous faux pas simply by flicking the TV switch at the wrong time. (2) 23

Here's the scene:

The guests have dined elegantly and have adjourned to the drawing room to sip their demitasses and watch "I ristan and Isolde"—a 1931 movie version filmed in Milan with English dubbed in for the Italian which had been dubbed in for the German.

The hostess innocently turns on the set and the polite chit-chat is drowned out by an athletic announcer screeches:

"Here's good news for HEMORRHOID sufferers!"

Now there's a conversation-killer if I ever heard one. And for the rest of the night, the guests squirm uncomfortably on their seats

JONI JAMES . . . Thrush Eats Like Condor

How Does Li'l Joni Keep That Figure?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP)-Songbird Joni James, who sings like a thrush and eats like a giant condor, has little patience with the inconveniences of travel.

Although she's on the road weeks at a time playing college concerts and prom dates, petite Joni doesn't belleve in suffering.

When she got fed up with commercial airlines a few years back, she bought a pale pink plane that hums like a humming bird, and left the ticket takers waiting at the counter.

And when she has her fill of hotel and restaurant food, she simply borrows somebody's kitchen and whips up a mountain of lobster fra diavolo, clams posilipo, veal scalloppine, spaghetti marinara and other Italian favorites that leave the boys in the band gasping in gastronomic glee.

EVEN THE good things in life can be a drag if repeated too often.

On a recent tour of the Philippines, Joni was feted everywhere and every day with the traditional islands welcome of roast suckling pig done over an open fire.

"I was up to here in roast-suckling pig," says Joni, in-dicating her lovely limpid eyeballs. "I'm crazy about Chinese cooking but by the end of the week even my eggs in the morning began to taste like egg foo yong.

Chicago-born Joni did exactly what mother would have done. She scoured the open air markets for bell peppers, tender fryers, oregano, basil and the other indispensable innards of chicken cac-

"THEY DIDN'T have parmesan or romano, so I had to settle for a Spanish cheese," Joni recalls her culinary casting problems. "Our host for the weekend turned over the Midwy (Some only) lot of government officials over. Their wives flocked around to watch. Most of them had three or four servants and never cooked themselves, but soon they were pitching in too.

"It turned out great, but I don't think the host was too confident. He had 100 squabs turning on outdoor rotisseries just in case."

Joni lives with her husband-manager-arranger, Tony Acquaviva, in a sumptuous Manhattan apartment overlooking Gracie Mansion and the East River. On a clear day she can see Mayor Rob-Wagner's two sons popping a basketball against the mansion garage. And on the foggiest days his honor can hear "There Goes My Heart," "My Love, My Love," "Why Don't You Believe Me?" and other Joni James million-selling records booming out from the monster stereo set in the Acquaviva living room,

HER SECRET of success in a fickle business: "Sing for the 20-year-olds, the 30-year-olds and the 50-year-olds, Forget the 12-year-olds, because they'll soon forget you. The whole industry has gone mad catering to a group of kids who represent only a fraction of America's musical

"When these kids grow up, they graduate to cool jazz and folk singers and look upon the "Four Thises" and the 'Three Thats' as just kid

As soon as Joni gets a respite from personal appearances, concerts, recording sessions and television dates, she plans to write her equivalent of the great American novel: "The Joni James Cook Book."

Chances are it won't include a recipe for roast suckling pig, but let's hope it gives a few pointers on how, to maintain a Joni Jamesian. figure while dining on year

'Action! Camera!' - - Vince Holds § Attention of Actors on the Set

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)-Jack Benny fire off the first fan letter in his long career to the most listened-to man in Cinema City-a celebrity's celebrity who has stars and moguls hanging on his every

Outside of Southern California and Brooklyn this imposing figure is almost entirely unknown. But he can break up concerts, stop shooting on the sets and commands fan mail on the grand scale.

He's Vince Scully, the man who announces the Dodgers baseball games. *

AN 11-YEAR VETERAN with the ballclub, Scully has made Southern Californians a sect of transistor radio fanatics. When Dodger games are in progress, movie sets, TV stages and the streets are filled with semi-conscious listeners with wires running from tiny radios to their ears.

Scully, an engaging Irishman with a shock of fire-red hair, is delighted with his popularity a mong movietown's bigwigs.

"I guess my biggest fan is Producer "Mervyn" Leroy," Vince said. "He gave me a small role in one of his pictures just for the heck of it.

"Benny sent me a telegram congratulations for the job I'm doing. He said it was the only fan letter he'd ever written. Kirk Douglas also sent me a nice letter."

DURING GAMES in the Coliseum fans can hear Scully's account of the action clearly-there are that many transistor radios blaring throughout the crowd.

"I think that's because so many Californians are unfamiliar with major league baseball," he explained, "and they like to understand what happening out on the Scully considers his broadcasting job a part of show business.

"There is always excitement and drama in a ballgame, and I depend à great deal on the roar of the crowd to give it punch.

"There have been complaints from the Hollywood Bowl and theaters in this area that people can't hear what's going on because of the radios smuggled into performances. Even the actors can keep up with the games by listening from the stage between lines."

here," Scully concluded: "Underneath it all, Los Angeles fans are almost exactly the same as the ones we left in Brooklyn,"

How Is the Show Faring? Stars Ask Floyd Jackson!

By JOE FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) -TV stars scan the ratings after a show to check their popularity, but those in the know also confer with the hootblack at NBC.

Floyd Jackson has been polishing shoes at NBC's studios for 10 years and his customers include such prominent stars as Jerry Lewis, Ralph Edwards, Tennessee Ernie Ford, Dinah Shore, Jack Bailey and Carl Reiner.

"Some stars ask me what I think of their show," the 50-year-old Negro said. "And, if I didn't like it, I say so, also telling them my opinion might not be worth much. But, they answer that I'm the public."

THE COURSE of Floyd's life runs a lot less smoothly than the average bootblack who's not exposed to the crazy antics of show folks.

"Oh, they pull jokes on me," laughed Floyd. "I can take it though. Only time I didn't like it was when one of the performers on the old Dean Martin Jerry Lewis show poured the polish out of my bottles while I was eating lunch. Jerry heard about it and gave me $100."

Floyd has taken part in some studio gags that go on during warmup periods before air time.

"Once I walked up behind an announcer who was giving

"Another time, when the announcer for Tennessee Ernie Ford introduced the Rose Bowl queen during rehearsal, I sneaked on in her place," he said.

FLOYD ALSO makes an occasional appearance on Jack Bailey's "Queen for a Jack Bailey's Day" prograi program during the warmup session.

"Jack's introduced as the onorary mayor of Hollyhonorary wood," Floyd explained. It sure mixes up an audience when I walk on the stage with my shoe shine kit in answer to that introduction."

Despite the spoofs, shoe shining is a serious business with Floyd, who also is a maintenance man at night for Warner Bros. studios.

"I've done pretty good," he "I've bought a home and put my daughter through nursing school. And, I'll be able to send my son to col-

Actor Dates From Billie Dove to Doris Day By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)-Only one actor in the world can lay claim to working in movies with Billie Dove and Doris Day-but he had to live to the age of 90 to accomplish the distinction.

He's Cott Seaton who made his acting debut in 1887 at the tender age of 17. In the intervening years he has appeared in hundreds of picturés.

"And I'm still going strong," he said with a twinkle,

"I'm just a ham who likes to talk about the good old days but honesty forces me to admit I gave up acting for 20 years-between 1905 and 1925. There wasn't much doing during that time so I went into real estate, But nobody holds that against me."

Q###### SEATON is a pink-cheeked old timer with whispy strands of white hair and merry blue eyes. His favorite topic of conversation is his age.

Asked if he had a family, Seaton admitted that he is the father of two sons and a daughter.

"They're good kids," he said, "I'm especially close to my oldest boy, Raymond. He's 70 years old, but Ray is still a kid to me. Guess he isn't a child any more, though. He retired and lives in Denver."

. Seaton's other youngsters are a son, 35, and daughter "in her late 40s." He is a great - great - grandfather and somewhat confused by the thought that Raymond is a great-grandfather himself.

"I begán with a small stage company which I owned back around 1900," the veteran actor recalled.

"One of the performers I hired was D. W. Griffith. He worked for me for $60 a week. Twenty-five years later I was working for him at $100 a day - after he became a famous director."

Wlien Seaton made his movie debut in 1925 he starred with June Marlow in "Wild Beauty." He was a squirt of 55 at the time.

* * * "I PLAYED a whole lot of character roles, doctors, fathers, judges and other mid-dle aged parts," he said. "Now I do TV shows, too. You can see me Friday night on the 'Hotel de Paree' pro-

Seaton said he will continue working until his 100th birthday, at which time he will

"My longevity is due to moderation in all things," he said, polishing off his second pre-lunch Martini at the Hollywood Brown Derby.

He fished an old playbift from his pocket. The yellowed pages billed him as the juvenile lead in "The Hills of California." It was dated 1889.

"You ought to come out to my apartment," Seaton said, as he began on a shrimp cocktail. "I have some wonderful pictures of the 1906 San Francisco earthquake. Took 'em myself."

OUR COVER

Typical of oriental femininity and charm which pervades Long Beach's International Beauty Congress is tall and slender Michiko Takagi, who poses as Southland's cover girl wearing the traditional "white" makeup of her native Japan. Miss Takagi's furisode kimono, tied with a huge, intricate obi (sash), has tiny gold circles surrounding her family insignia, or crest, as part of its design. Her colorful hairdress, clog slippers, and sweet, retiring manner add up to a terrific passel of charm beneath that dainty rice-paper parasol! Other examples of oriental beauty will be found on Page 7.

VEXT WEEK

Although gold was discovered at Coloma in 1849, the Mother Lode country of California was still seething with fortune hunters 110 years ago this week. But the rush eventually subsided and thriving cities were reduced to ghost towns. Next week, Southland takes you to the area in an illustrated story called "Ghosts of the 49ers."

Fred Taylor Kraft, Magazine Editor

Southland Magazine is published weekly as a supolement to the Sunday Editlor The Independent, Press-relearam, 201 Pine Ave., Leng Beach 12, Callf. Represented nationally by Ridder-Johns, Inc., New York, San Francisca, Chicago, Detroit EMEMBER the shimmy," the athletic dance of the 1920s?

It started Eugene Jackson,

By Charles W. Crutcher

and market now 43, of 830 W. Plum St. Compton, on a vaudeville and movie career.

"In 1928," recalls Jackson,

"I danced the shimmy at an amateur show in a Los Angeles neighborhood movie theater. I won first prize, a big box of groceries.

"I took groceries home so often after that, they began calling me the 'Shimmy King'
... That didn't please the theater manager very well; he'd have liked to see the groceries widely," distributed more len, 3, to Culver City. Studios advertised for players and it was not hard to crash the gate in those days. At Thomas H. Ince studio, May McAvoy was looking for a Negro boy to play in "Her Reputation."

Eugene landed the job-his lirst movie role.

AT THE HAL ROACH studio, director Bob McGovern wanted a girl for two-reel "Our Gang" comedies, and found what he wanted in Allen.

The studio dressed him up like a girl in pigtails and gave him the name Farina. The theory was that a hoy could take the hard knocks better than a girl,

Allen played the part of a girl until he was 12 years old, then he rebelled.

Eugene also played for several years in Our Gang comedies, taking Sunshine Sammy's place when Sammy went into vaudeville.

Getting typed soured Allen on Hollywood, and he stopped acting. But Eugene went on. Often he worked in two pictures at one time.

While filming "King of the Jungle," Eugene, 9, was showing a girl, 8, through the jungle. "We came upon a lion. I showed protection by placing my spear between the girl and the lion. The lion took offense at this and started for me. But he suddenly turned me down and went the other way. Next day this lion killed one of the leading men in the company."

EUGENE HAD got a me-morable part in 1931 with Richard Dix and Irene Dunne in the first big western ever made, "Cimarron." He played the part of Isaiah.

In this film, Wesley Ruggles, the director, purchased two large cakes for $125 each and told Jackson (Isaiah) that if he'd fall right, without a re-take, he would give him the other cake.

Jackson was suspended on a crystal chandelier over a banquet table. Around, the table sat many guests.

When the signal to shoot was given, Isaiah was fanning imaginary flies away from the confection with a fly swatter. When Dix told of a land rush and let out a bloodcurdling yell, Isaiah did a wonderful fall into the cake.

Who Said, "My Hat Is in the Ring?"

Teddy Roosevelt popularized the expression: "My hat is in the ring!" as a phrase in the jargon of U.S. politics.

By John Ronson

The phrase has been familiar with Americans for 50 years!

Today it means only one thing: A politician has declared himself a candidate.

In this election year, candidates will doff their Stetsons, ready to battle for the highest and lowest elective offices in the nation.

Teddy Roosevelt popularized the expression for politicians in 1912 when he ran for president on the Progressive Party ticket. He was heading for Columbus, Ohlo ... to address the convention

. when news-hungry reporters stopped him in Cleveland.

"Your friends want to know if you're going to be a candidate?" they asked.

He replied, "My hat is in the ring! The fight is on. I'm (Continued on Next Page)

My Hat:

THE OLD Rough Rider was familiar with cowboy slang, from which the expression derives. In the Wild West, a man; volunteered to participate in a boxing match by literally throwing his hat into the ring.

"Ready to fight at the drop of a hat" alludes to the same

The cowboy hat that flew into the ring was the familiar large-brimmed variety. In 1860, John B. Stetson had traveled west for his health. When he returned to Philadelphia, he designed head-gear especially to suit the needs of the American cow-boy. He called it a "ten-gallon hat." It became known simply as a "Stetson" . . . though Stetson makes all kinds of headgear.

BUT HISTORY shows the expression didn't originate with the cowboy, either.

EARLIER, in some parts of England, wrestling matches were arranged by having contestants throw down their hats. A blindfolded referee shuffled them by twos. The owners were thus paired for the match.

Gipsies of Spain," George Barrow wrote:

"The intended combatants at length arrived. It was necessary to clear the ring ... always a troublesome and difficult task. Thurstall went up to the two Gipsies . . then pushing the people aside he strode to the ropes, over which he bounded into the ring, flinging his Spanish hat into the air."

The fight was on!

But the earliest use of the expression probably goes back to ancient Rome. The first gladiators were moned into the ring by having a prominent citizen drop a handkerchief, "My handkerchief is in the ring," he probably cried. Hats had not yet come into vogue.

A hat is something the average man covers his head with . . . the beggar passes . the politician talks through . . . and the states-man throws into the ring.

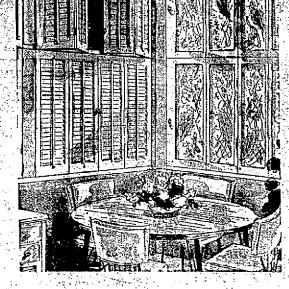

Today, the political race is on Ask anyone to predict the outcome and he'll tell

Dolls from the Far Pacific

By Fran Reno

GOWNED IN TRADITIONAL costumes—with a few 1960 innovations—languorous lovelies from the Far Pacific have arrived for Long Beach's International Beauty Congress, and those who saw them get off the boats and planes liked what they saw-from the ground up!

Mingling now with styles from Florence, Paris, London and Rome, as well as those from the West Coast salons, it is interesting to take a closer look at how these beauties prettled up for the occasion.

Lissome Patricia Apoliona, 22-year-old Aloha airlines stewardess, who is entered as Miss South Pacific, was gowned in a holomuu fashioned of bright red, white and black tapa print, dreams of becoming top-flight fashion model. The hostess gown fits tightly from the decollete neckline to just above the knees; where the fabric breaks into a softly pleated, flared ruffle, which forms a fishtail train in back. Tiny puffed sleeves and a pure white multi-strand lel of tiny shells completed the dark-haired beauty's costume.

Miss Apoliona, who hails from Honolulu, has dark hair and eyes, and wears a shell lel. Five feet, five inches tall, she's a lithe 115 pounds of accomplished hala dancer with measurements of plished hula dancer, with measurements of 35-24-35.

Petite Elizabeth Voon, Borneo's representative, displayed her charms in a brightly patterned cheengsam—a fitted sheath with mandarin collar, and (of special photographic interest) the high-slit side seams. The talented singer and dancer confessed with a shy smile that her dress "iss nee lon" and "very high style" in Borneo.

Miss Voon is only 5 feet four inches tall, but her 118 pounds pack a lot of charm. Measuring (Continued on Page 27)

Captain Jack and His Crew of 800

By Jack B. Kemmerer

Center of seagoing summer camp is historic lighthouse at Pt. Fermin.

AT PT. FERMIN LIGHTHOUSE in San Pedro "sails" an odd ship that never gets off dry land. In fact, to landlubbers, it doesn't look like a ship at all. Yet, Captain Jack Waters and his trained staff have a summer crew of more than 800.

The crew of 800 is made up of Southland children from 9 to 11 years old and they are attending the Los Angeles board of education's low-cost summer sea camp. Eighty children— 40 boys and 40 girls—are in the camp each week from Monday through Friday.

According to Waters, camp supervisor and "captain," the five days the children spend in "Operation Outdoors" is really an extension of the regular school year. In recent years outdoor education has gone rapidly forward as educators recognize the importance of a well-rounded fund of knowledge for their youthful charges.

$9.40—puts it in the range for almost any youngster and is made possible by the fullest use of existing facilities and the complete cooperation of the Parks and Recreation Dept. For example, the camp site is at Pt. Fermin Lighthouse, long an historical area. The lighthouse was built in the 1870s to warn mariners of the rocky coast at San Pedro, It still functions—with the help of radar—but at no additional cost to the taxpayers it has also served for the past 12 years as the "ship" of the summer sea camp. Eight steeping tents are located on the lighthouse grounds.

All food is prepared at the cafeteria of a nearby school. Special equipment already available is used to bring the food to the children as hot as when it was cooked.

MANY ACTIVITIES are on the regular schedule and each child gets a full course of entertaining instruction in fishing, harbors, shell crafts, square dancing, camp cooking, hikes and, of course, the sea itself.

"Strange as it may sound," says Capt. Jack, "a lot of kids who come down here have never seen the ocean, have never caught a fish, don't know what a hermit crab is and most of them have never been away from home for a week."

The camp maintains everything on a nautical level. Sea terms are used throughout — for example, a drinking fountain is a scuttlebutt; tents have ship names — the USS Rough and Ready, the SS Sinker. The 800 children each week are divided into four groups and select their own group names such as Pearl Divers, Crabs, Sharks, Starfish, Beach Bums. Even the camp counselors have received sea going nicknames from the youthful crew members. The assistant director of the camp answers to the name of Breezy and there's Barnacle, Foggy, Surfy; Windy and more.

Small try gang up on their counselor to get him into the chilly water.
For some of the kids, it's their first ocean swim—and they love it!

Another high light of the camp is a trip to the tide pools where many kinds of sea lite are found. Many items go back to the camp aquarium:

Jack Waters, camp captain, serves the small campers as he passes through the cateteria-style food line. Youngsters do the clean up after each meal.

Youngsters line fishing barge rail to try their luck. Some of the many children who come to camp have never seen the sea, let alone catch a fish.

The dance that crossed the U.S. by covered wagon wins new favor

By Vera Williams

EVERYONE KNOWS about square dancing and ballroom dancing, but how many know about round dancing?

The skill, which devotees agree is a lot of fun, is taught in classes under auspices of the Recreation Depart-

Arthur Johnson and his wife Evelyn (pupils know them as Art and Ev) teach a class at 8 p.m. Thursdays in Silverado Park clubhouse, 31st St. and Santa Fe Ave.

Dean Fabry teaches a class at 8 p.m. the first and third Thursdays of each month in Belmont Recreation Center, 4104 E. Allin St.

Frank and Carolyn Hamilton will teach a class to meet at 8 p.m. Wednesdays, which will be organized Sept. 21 in Pan American Park clubhouse, 5157 Centralia Ave.

PUPILS RANGE from teenagers to 70-year-olds. They dance in couples, counter-clockwise, in a big circle All do the same step. Men wear Western, attire, women wear squaw dresses or blouses and full skirts. Women al-ways wear ballet slippers, never heels.

Round dancing is not as strenuous as square dancing.

Art and Ev's pupils call themselves the "Left Footer Rounds," and they wear a pin shaped like a left foot. When they are beginners, this foot has a big bunion. When they graduate to intermediate, the bunion is detached. The left foot pin is a dram-atization of the common wail of beginners: "I can't learn to dance! I have two left feet!"

"ROUND DANCING is an America-produced basic dance," explains Ev, "our grandparents and great-grandparents and great-grandparents danced it around camp fires they takked week in covered. when they trekked west in covered wagons.

"It is rooted, probably, in French and English folk dances brought to America by immigrants, and when it reached the Pacific Coast it was strongly influenced by Spanish dances.

"The Varsovienne—you know Put your little foot; put your little foot, put your little foot right there!—is perhaps the best known round dance."

Round dancing has 13 positions, and it usually is done to two-step and waltz music. Recently, Long Beach classes have added tango, rhumba and cha cha rhythms

Most of the classes start with teaching beginners to move to two-step and waltz rhythm. Then they bestep and waitz raythm. Then they begin dancing to "Five Foot Two" and "Buzz" Mixer," two-step music. That reasonably under control, they go on to "Mixmaster. Waltz" and "Star wearing pins shaped like the state of Waltz," all with definite beat,

Then "Bye Bye Blues," "It Had To Be You" and "Nellie."

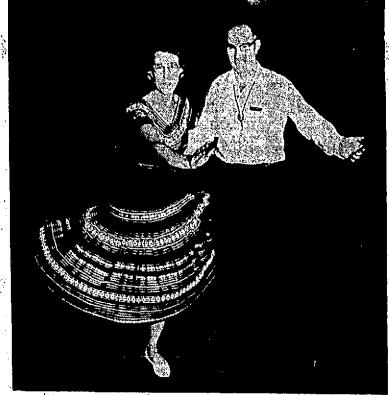

FROM THE EASY steps, round dancers proceed to "Siesta in Seville," "Fascination" and "Gold and Silver." Incidentally, the "Gold and Silver" steps were devised by Julic Passcrello, Long Beach dancer.

Generally speaking, a novice can become a fair round dancer in a 16week course; 21/2 hours a week, and a good dancer in the second 16-week course. Lessons have social coffee breaks, with coffee and cookies, and dancers try out new steps.

In a good many square dance programs, there are two square dances and then a round dance. Round dancers consider round dancing an integral part of square dancing.

"Learning a different type of dance is a challenge, it furnishes a new method of expression," says Ey, "and on the dance floor all are equal." No one knows whether you have a dime or a million dollars—and they don't care, so long as you are fun to be with."

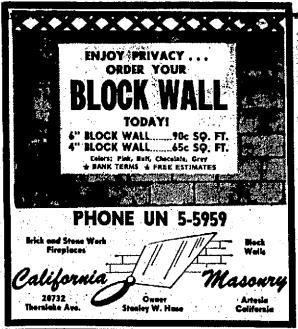

Arthur and Evelyn Johnson, Recreation Dept. round dance teachers, demonstrate the step-through in "It Had to Be You." Dance is popular.

Art and Ev, as their dance students know them best, do the step swing in "Blue Pacific." Round dancing crossed the country in covered wagons.

And here they go in the whirlaway, also in "Blue Pacific." Beginners in their classes start out wearing pins shaped like left feet with bunions. When they become expert, they drop the bunions. When they become expert, they drop the bunions. When they become expert, they drop the bunions.

ailed Astronauts Go Into Orbit

By Caroline Coleman

YOUNGSTERS on any space ship going out of orbit in the Long Beach area will feel right at home if they happen to land in the play yard of Huntington School, 1416 E. Ocean Blvd.

Florence K. Lewis, director of the private school for boys and girls, has succumbed to the influence of the space age -and the yard is now the site of space-oriented play equipment.

Poised on a launching pad, its bright orange nose pointed skyward, the bright yellow exterior concealing a ladder especially suited to shortlegged space inhabitants, is a "rocket slide." Its long turquoise slide is slanted just right for the rapid return of space-minded earthlings to terra firma,

A skyward directed missle (with all its feet on the ground, however) is called a "Loony Bug" and has a tall antenna ready to pick up radar signals, portholes to peer through, a hollow interior to crawl through, and a door to climb in. The jungle gym is no longer simply a jungle gym-instead, it is an arc-shaped "missle hangar" well suited to the pre-space gymnastics of future astronauts.

Gym unit, called rocket ship hangar, is used by Christine Rentro, Jimbo Crawford, Vincent King, John Thomas, Michael Ulrich.

Space ship with slide has ladder concealed within upright portion. At play are Linda Blemberg, Carla Post, David Berke.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

With a Sleek and Modern Look

Remodeling created this room of beauty in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Silverman. Rock fireplace has wide hearth for seating. White Naugahyde covers couch-divider.

In THE RANCHO homes area of east Long Beach many of the houses have the same basic floor plan as in the case of all tract homes. In this particular section, however, owners seem to make every effort to make every effort to make their homes individual and different, and they succeed to a remarkable degree. One such home belongs to Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Silverman, 3032 Pattiz Ave.

The Silverman home has achieved the sleek, modern look, designed for casual living and easy housekeeping. To begin with, the entire lawn area is concreted which makes the lot seem larger than it really is. The front of the home is enclosed with an ivy covered fence, and the front door bell is on the fence itself.

Entry is to a concrete pation front of the home, with a view of the swimming pool to the right. The L-shaped pool leads to the rear cemented patio. Concrete surface in the latter area is unusual and very attractive with small shells implanted in the concrete itself, an area that gives off a small glow of its own at night.

THE LIVING ROOM-dinette-dining area in the home has been completely remodeled, providing a feeling of wide, bright and sunny space that is remarkable considering the total square footage. For one thing, all the windows in the rooms have been draped with the new Jaylis drapes which are made of a type of plastic. These drapes are not only long wearing but luxurious in looks and texture. Translucent, the drapes give a glare-

Side view of the Silverman home shows a portion of the swimming pool-with patio area to the right. The lot is small but, fully concreted, it appears much larger.

Included in the remodeling was the Installation of a new bar, 9 feet long and handy for serving, informal meals.

less, light appearance to the room, and also act as an attractive wall-decoration.

Actually, the living area of the home consists of four parts: the kitchen, dining room, living room, and entertaining room with built-in bar. A white Naugahyde couch forms the living room divider. A low white table flanks the two ends of the couch, bringing them together. In front of the couch stands an unusual and beautiful coffee table made quite simply from a driftwood base (with a planter inserted) and curved glass top.

In a corner of the living room a small marble table with four chairs awaits impromptu card games. It is out of the way but ready for use when needed. Like the builtin bar at the other end of the room, the table is an attractive asset. The bar is built with its back to the center of the room. A nine foot barfront at seating height af-fords ample space for buffet suppers and the like. The cozy entertaining nook once housed ceiling height closets. There is easy access to the kitchen from one end of the bar, and at the other end an opaque glass faces the front door. Indirect lighting there is effective at night.

THE DINING AREA is furnished with a formicatopped table which appears to be black marble. Black chairs add to the modern look. A black bordered screen separates the kitchen from the dining area, and can be removed when there is company. The washer and dryer which were once in the kitchen have been removed, and a sit-down breakfust bar in their place serves a useful everyday purpose.

A Hammond organ at the far end of the room is a fine accessory plece. The rock fireplace with wide, sit-down hearth decorated with bright cushions adds color and warmth to the room. A mural in the dining area which was painted by Mrs. Silverman's father gives a decorator's touch.

The master bedroom features new low closets with pull-out hangers, a corner TV, and glass windows. A glass leads to the pool. The other bedroom (originally two bedrooms now made into one) is a combination denbedroom-music room, complete with piano, desk, and all necessities for a teenage boy.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This Design Gives Mother Peace

This six-room ranch looks big but has only 1,407 square feet of living space on its afficient ground floor. There are three bedrooms and one and one half baths.

By David L. Bowen

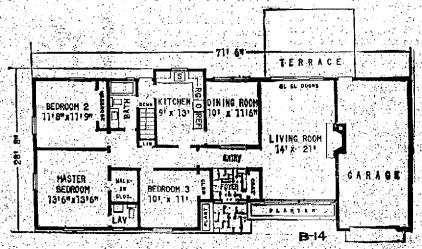

RE YOU a little tired of togetherness?

When the children bring home their friends, would you just as soon see them disappear into the basement as set up headquarters in a family room next to your

When you bring YOUR friends in, would you like to have a formal living room the children couldn't invade? If you prefer to take your family togetherness with such occasional reservations, you will be interested in some simple but rare features Architect Herbert C. Struppmann has designed into B-14 in the House of the Week series. A three-bedroom ranch 11/2 baths, B-14 was tailored to the results of an informal poll the architect conducted among shipmates during a U.S. Naval Reserve cruise.

ONE OF THE items this sea going architect heard stressed often was a demand for a one-level living with privacy. Possibly because most service families have been crowded into cramped quarters so often, most meń

FLOOR

Dead-end living room, separate dining room and doors which close off the bedroom section from the entertainment area feature this ranch home. Basement is playroom.

There is only one route from inside the house into the gracious living room. This arrangement is designed to keep the family traffic from using it for a thoroughfare.

emphasized the need to sort. out the different areas of the house and provide for clear separation between them.

Architect Struppmann took a big step toward this goal by designing a living room that completely dead-end. It doesn't lead anywhere and need not be entered at all between periods of use.

He also put a set of double doors in the hallway which, when closed, seal off the entire bedroom section from the foyer and entertaining area. Safely out of sight, children can get as rambunctious as they like behind them and not disturb the guests.

The design has a big house look, but actually is of only moderate size. Habitable area is 1,407 square feet, with 371 additional sq. ft. of garage.

It is wide, measuring 71' 6". Depth is 28' 8".

There's a bluestone entry patio which continues right into the foyer. The entry hall is up one step, with an attrac-tive arch opening on the dining room beyond so that the arriving guest can look across the dining table and out the picture window at the back;

The living room utilizes the full depth of the house to the right of the foyer. There is cross ventilation, with a huge four-panel , window at the front and a wall of slidingglass doors at the back. Centered on one wall is an impressive stone fireplace

WITH A DOOR to the center hall and another to the rear vestibule, the kitchen is really in the center of things. Ready access is supplied to the basement stairs and to the main bathroom, via a second door. It's a big, bright room, with work area laid out in an Lishape and a corner dinette or snack bar.

The left side of the house holds three big bedrooms. The master bedroom has the convenience of a private lavatory. Each of the rooms is large enough to sleep two and the front bedroom next to the parents' room could be made into a study-bedroom for a teen-age girl or boy, or be-come a full scale den when the youngster goes off to school.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12; Calif.; enclose cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-14.

Stanford Invades Europe

By Leif Erickson

Attaciated Press Writer

EUROPE IS being invaded again, this time by Stanford University.

Stanford has established a campus near Stuttgart, Germany, and is planning other bridgeheads in France and Italy. The original contingent of Stanford students is expected to expand until eventually one-third of the university's graduates will do some of their studying abroad.

Their objective: Reading, writing and rapport.

The French word precisely describes the warm feeling of the Stanford study center's select group of 68 students for each other, for their teachers, and for the grape-growing villagers of Beutelsbach Bei Stuttgart.

A special award was conferred at Stanford's last commencement on Prof. Friedrich Wilhelm Strothmann, modern language department chief who conceived the Stanford-in-Germany plan.

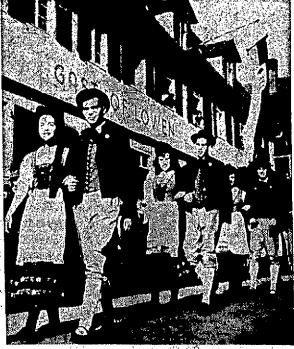

THE PLAN'S notable achievement is giving selected students two quarters of study abroad at the same cost as normal home campus charges for tuition and room and board. The only extracost a student pays is his return passage via chartered plane, about half the regular airline fare.

The rapture for learning aroused among both students and faculty in the close intellectual community at Stuttgart accomplished quickly and completely the Stanford administration's objectives for an overseas study center.

third of each Stanford graduating class will have studied abroad under the overseas program,

Stanford is considering establishing specialized study centers in Tokyo and Hong Kong for students with special interest in Japan and Asia

GERI WILDER, 22, of North Hollywood, who recently returned from her two quarters of study at Stuttgart, evaluated her experience with a personal definition of rapport:

In such a small group—studying, living and traveling together — you get to know people better than you ever did before. And you like them the way they are, without wanting to change them.

"The intellectual stimulation and inspiration is tremendous," said Geri, a slender blonde and articulate English major. "I never had such close contact with my teachers before. We worked in small seminars, and we had dinner with their families,

"Each of us adopted a particular German family, and we always talked with them in German Our anthropology class studied the village families. The villagers were very flattered.

A privately endowed school, Stanford's academic admission standards are looked on by football coaches as dismayingly high.

THE MEN and women winning European campus assignments represent a scholastic creme de la creme because competition for the 228 openings is intense.

The Stuttgart groups cram their studying and classes into four day weeks so they can have three day weekends for exploring Europe.

"Mother" Ida Baker, flag etiquette instructor, and some of the badges she has acquired attending conventions.

By Betty DeWeese

MOTHER" Ida Baker believes that she has taught Flag etiquette to more persons than any other Southern Californian.

For 16 years she has been patriotic instructor of Abraham/Lincoln Circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, and for two years she has been patriotic instructor of the Auxiliary to the Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Through the years she has talked frequently to patriotic, civic and youth groups, stressing the proper methods of displaying and honoring the Flag.

"MOTHER" BAKER, 28 58th Pl., a tiny, white-haired woman who will be 85 years old on Oct. 13, has a patriotic background. Her father, Benjamin Franklin Albin, a cousin of Benjamin Franklin, served in the Union Army in the Civil War.

A brother, Walter Albin, served in the Spanish-American War.

Mrs. Baker had four sons in World War I and eight grandsons and two granddaughters in World War JL She has badges she has worn as a delegate to patriotic conventions from San Francisco to New York.

HERE ARE the Flag rules she teaches:

The Flag of the United States of America is too sacred an emblem to be used for any purpose other than that of patriotic intent, for it is the symbol of the entire na-

The Flag should be raised briskly at sunrise.

It should be lowered, slowly, at sunset.

It should never touch the ground, trail in the water, nor be left out in inclement weather.

These Kids Thrive on Latin

Lee McCracken

DR. FRANK NELSON, professor of English, Long Beach State College, many times has expressed belief that foreign languages should be taught at as early an age as possible, since the young mind is not cluttered with the basic needs for survival and is open and eager for new ideas.

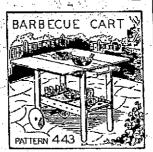

He was not too surprised. therefore, when several members of Boy Scout Troop No. 178 to which he donates a son and much of his own time, asked him if he would teach them a foreign lan-guage. He accepted eagerly, and made arrangements with Long Beach State College for the use of a classrooom, in exchange for which he would permit high school teachers taking summer school courses there to observe the class.

Dr. Nelson's prospective pupils bypassed the two foreign languages which he had taught before (Spanish and Norwegian) and decided to learn Latin. He dug back into his memory and throughout the library for material for the group (now swelled to include the 10-year-old sister of one of the Scouts) and the small group of enthusiastic youngsters arrived to begin their studies.

These students have rushed their instructor during the weeks the class has been in session, not only into Latin itself but also into the corre-

The Navy has a new weapon in Notty, 3-year-old porpoise, used in submarine and tor-pedo design studies. Here she goes through hoop for psychologist Ralph Penner.

DUPPY-PLAYFUL Notty, age 3, is the U.S. Navy's cutest secret weapon, Notty is a porpoise.

She belongs to the Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake, which, although headquartered on an empty desert for safety's sake, specializes in such grim aquatic devices as torpedoes.

By Ralph Dighton

Notty would make a fine torpedo.

Still a baby, 6-foot, 180-pound Notty can streak through the water at well over 20 knots - on command,

By the time she's grown she may be able to hit 30 knots, or even 40 - which is one of the reasons the navy has gone into the porpoisesitting business.

Others:

PORPOISES have a built-in sonar-audible beeps from their melon-like foreheads that enable them to swim blindfolded through mazes of wires and ropes, spot tidbits yards away through murky water.

Porpoises can be trained to tow things through the water, even wear harnesses.

Porpoises are extremely intelligent, perhaps rivaling man in their ability to adapt to a new environment, and they are eager to learn.

. All they ask in return is a signal of approval and an extra ration of fish

Last January the navy commissioned Marineland Oceanarium to catch and tame a young porpoise. Netted while frisking about the prow of a ship a few miles off the coast, Notty was soon installed in her own special tank at Marineland.

SHE WAS NOT allowed to get chuminy with the Oceanarium's other porpoises, which honk horns and play water polo at daily shows in the main tanks. The navy has other things in mind for Notty.

Soon she will be flown to San Diego and placed in a windowed tank 341 feet long and 12 feet wide. Here, where ComAir scientists formerly tested models of amphibian planes, the serious work will begin.

Her skin temperature, for example, may provide a clue to the effortless speed of her

Fort Knox' of the Lagunas'

Chariot Canyon in Julian-Banner area is humorously called "Fort Knox." Red Jackson is one of the canyon's residents.

By Sanford Jarrell

A BOUT 60 MILES east of San Diego, as the highway winds, lies the unincorporated community of Julian. Perched on a ridge of the pine-clad Laguna Mountains, it looks like a TV mining-

More than half a century has elapsed since gold in any appreciable quantity has been produced there, but Julian still breathes, talks and thinks gold. It is no ghost town, al-though the block-long business section of frame buildings hasn't changed a great deal physically from the boom years. The saloons have vanished and so has the busy stage station centered around a wood-burning stove, but the gold fever that ran so high for many years after the first find in the winter of 1869-70 has never quite run its course.

Ninety years ago there were several hundred men panning the sands of Coleman, Camp, Emily and Bilk creeks, and fairly profitably, too. A shanty town called Emily City—later supplanted by Julian—sprouted almost overnight. The first substantial log cabin was, of course, a saloon. The San Diego Bulletin on Feb. 5, 1870, credited A. L. Coleman with making the discovery, said he had found gold running as high as $1.25 per pan. About that time, North A. Knight started a semi-weekly stage line from San Diego's Old Town, carrying 11 passengers on the initial trip. Fare was $6 each way.

THE FIRST RUSH in the Julian-Banner district lasted from 1870 to 1875, with a small flurry in 1888, and a more profitable era from 1895 to 1903. As late as 1906, ore valued at $100,000 was taken out of the mines there in a single year. Estimates of the total output in 90 years range : ... hard-rocks, prospectors alike from 5 to 15 million dollars.

Although Julian primarily is the center of a rich applegrowing country, placer and lode mining continue sporadically in the area, and everyone there agrees that only the low price of gold—pegged $35 an ounce back in 1933—prevents resumption of active operations. And three practical men, backing their judgment with money, exude confidence in the future of the gold field.

These are the Creese brothers, Cecil and Fred, whose properties include an orebearing mine on the old Banner Grade, a stamp mill and other holdings; and Frank Herrin, retired Pasadeña lawyer who owns 22 claims of roughly 20 acres each. The Herrin claims are contiguous from a point a few miles east of Julian on the present Ban-ner Grade to the one-time boom camp of Banner and include much of Chariot Canyon, scene of a celebrated strike in August 1870.

ANOTHER MAN who has abounding faith in the region is John Collins, who occasion-ally works his mine and stamp mill, located a little closer to Julian than the Kentuck, where the Tennessee-born Herrin lives in a oneroom cabin on one of his claims, surrounded by books and cases of mineral speci-

The Creeses are sound mining men, who have vision without being visionary, and who set up shop there years ago. Unlike most prospec-tors—both the unshaven desert-rat type and the enthusiastic hobbyists-they have a thorough knowledge both of hard-rock mining and mill operation. Herrin became interested in gold through the handling of mining cases and by intensive study of the subject in libraries and in the field. He permits placer and to work his claims on a purely royalty basis.

THE MOUTH of Charlot Canyon lies only a short distance above Banner itself. Since the early 1930s, Walter and Marie Eisenhower have owned much of the townsite, which now consists of a little store trailer camp and picnic grounds, and several cottages. In its heyday, Banner had four saloons, a store, post office, school and the Wilcox Hotel. The latter, warm—and thus thin out the water around her, allowing Notty to cut through the water like a hot knife through butter,

THE SAME rush of blood may also flow backward along her body as she swims, creating microscopic ripples in her skin.

Navy' hydrodynanicist Thomas Lang says these ripples, if they exist, may break up the tiny bubbles that form on the surface of objects moving through water and cause drag.

These principles, applied to torpedoes and submarines, could double their speed and save taxpayers millions of dollars in navy fuel bills. The easier a ship can slip through water, the less fuel it requires to cover a given distance.

Theoretically, Notty can't swim as fast as she does. Scientists say she doesn't have the sliape or the muscular development for it.

So far they haven't found any way of telling Notty about this.

Communicating with Notty is a knotty problem. She "talks" to Ralph Penner, USC psychologist who is training her, by bobbing her head and chattering her jaws to coax for another chunk of fish.

He talks back in normal voice and she seems to understand — some of the time.

"WHENEVER she fails to respond," says Penner, "It's my fault, not hers — my inability to communicate to her."

Notty has a schoolgirl crush on Penner, a tall, handsome young scientist who spends more time in his rubber diving suit than he does in street clothes

Guiding her with his hands and rewarding her with food and petting, Penner has taught Notty:

I. To take off at full speed on signal—a quick wave of his hand—so her acceleration can be measured.

2. To hold still while dyes are smeared on her skin, a visual aid in clocking herspeed.

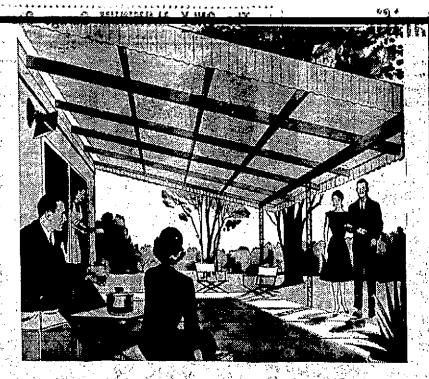

3. To stick her head through rings of varying thickness and swim with them in place just back of her head.

NAVY SCIENTISTS won't talk about this for security reasons, but it's obvious the rings could be designed to contain submarine detection devices or even explosives.

Porpoises are naturally attracted to the prows of ships cutting through water. Released from submarines at a safe depth—they are not subject to the human-crippling depth aliment known as the bends—a fleet of porpoises would seek out the nearest ships. If scrutiny proves them to be enemy vessels, the submarine commander need only to push a button to detonate the porpoises' collars and destroy every ship in the area.

Notty—who gets her name from the initials of the Naval Ordnance, Test Station—isn't likely to wind up as shark food. She's 100 valuable."

PEAR MISS RULE: We would like brief genealogy on BERRY.—R.L.B., Lakewood; MRS, L.C.; H.E.B., Long Beach.

R.B., L.C., H.B.: BERRY, a thousand years ago in Anglo-Saxon England, was "Beorh," a word describing a small, fortified hill. Beorh was used as surnames in the spellings Berry, Bury, Borough and Burrough The direct Berry ancestor was Ralph de Bury (Ralph from the Hill) whose manorial estate was called Berry Narbor in Devonshire, south England. He lived from 1220 to 1260 A. D. The Berry coat-of-arms has three golden bars across the center of a red shield. Old records of Watertown, Mass., list William Berry, a resident in 1648.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze RANDALL.-H.E.R., Whittier; M. R., Wilmington; J. R., Long Beach,

H.R., M.R., J.R.: RAND-ALL, an ancient Saxon English warrior name, meant "Shield-wolf," alluding to the ancestor's bravery in battle. The Randalls originated in Berkshire, to the west of London. Their coat of arms has an ermine cross on an azure blue shield. The motto of this ancient lineage, "Nil Extra Numerum" means figuratively, "In union there is strength." The American ancestor, William Randall, born in England in 1609, sailed from London on the ship Expectation in 1635 to Scituate, Miss., where he married in 1640. From his nine children many present day Randalls are descended.

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you give the background of COMPTON E.C., MRS R.G., Long Book Long Beach.

E. C., R. C.: COMPTON is the name of English towns in the name or English towns in Surrey, Wiltshire, Dorset, Somerset, Gloucester, Berk, shire, and Huntington. This place name, was formed from "Combe Ton" meaning Stown in the narrow valley of rayine." The Comptons were na tives of west England and took their name from one of the towns listed above. Far back in the ancestry Nicholas de Compton resided in Lin-colnshire in the late 1200s. The Compton coat-of-arms from Wiltshire has a gold lion with upraised front feet placed between three silver helmets on a black shield. Early American records list William Compton who married Mary Wilmont in Mas-sachusetts, 1666.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on KERR?-MRS. W. O., San Pedro; MRS. D. A., Long Beach.

W. O., D. A.: KERR, introduced to north England and Scotland by 9th century Danish invaders, was then spelled "Karr" meaning "marshy, swampy land." A family who lived near a "Karr" or marsh took this term for their name in the 12th century and handed it down to their progeny. In Gaelic Scotland Kerr was "Cathair," (pronounced "Kaar"). The Kerr coat-of-arms has three red spur rowels on a silver chevron crossing a silver-bordered red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like genealogy on CURTIS.— C. C. MRS. C. C. C., Long Beach

C. C., MRS, C. C. C.: CURTIS, from "Curtois," an early Norman French word, was brought to Britain in the 12th century This was a surname describing "courtly man-nered." Various spellings ocnered. Various spellings oc-cur in early reports, such as William Le Curtels of Cam-bridge, 1273; Osbert Le, Cur-teys, Essex, 1273; and Adam Curtase, York, 1379, Later progeny used Curtis and Curtice alternately. The Curtis shield is armine, crossed by a blue chevron between three gold fleurs de lis Bary Curtis, daughter of Philip Curtis of England married Sir John Washington, an ancestor of the first U.S. president. She died in 1624.

FOOD

Dainty or Dagwood

By Mildred K. Flanary

OR A SNACK or a full meal, sandwiches have wide popularity and infinite variety. The bread base, of course, is the only stable factor in fashioning a sandwich—and bread, too, takes many forms.

Sandwiches run the gamut from tiny finger bits which adorn salad and soun offerings to the multi-layered "Dagwood." The bread base my be a thick or a thin slice of white, whole wheat or rye, a short-to-long bun, round bun, poppy or caraway seed roll, mulfin or biscuit — or what have you?

Hero Jr. sandwich is made up on a frankfurter roll; Burgers Tropicale fill sliced buns. Here are the recipes:

Hero Jr. Sandwich

- can liver paste 2 tblsps, sour or heavy crèam
- 1 tsp. Angostura aromatic bitters
- 3 oz. pkg. cream cheese 1 tsp. Angostura aromatic bitters
- 1 tblsp, sour or heavy
- cream
- I tomato, peeled and sliced 6 to 8 radishes 1 small sweet onion, sliced
- 4 frankfurter rolls, sliced stuffed olives, sliced dill pickle, sliced in
- quarters

Mix liver paste with cream and add Angostura bitters. Mix well. Add cream and Angostura bitters to cream cheese, mix well. Peel and slice tomato, slice rad-ishes very thin; slice onion very thin. Take bottom half of frankfurter roll, make layer of onion, then layer of tomatoes, and layer of radishes. Pile liver paste in center, top entire half of roll with pickle strip. On top half of roll, spread cream cheese spread, make row down roll with thin slices of olives. To serve, put both halves together. Makes 4 complete sandwiches.

Burgers Tropicale

- 1/2 cup shredded coconut.
- pound ground beef
- 1/4 tsp. nu.... 1 tsp. salt tsp. nutmeg
- ½ cup pineapple juice
 1 thisp, lemon inice
- thisp, lemon juice
- tblsps. cornstarch
- cup water
- cup sliced almonds
- hamburger buns, sliced

Brown coconut in a skillet until crisp, over medium heat, stirring to prevent scorching. Add ground beef and cook until lightly browned, stirring carefully with a fork. Add nutmeg and salt, Combine pineapple and lemon juice, Dissolve cornstarch in water, Stir both pineapple and cornstarch mixtures into meat. Cook slowly and stir until mixture thickens, about ten minutes, Add almonds, Toast cut sides of hamburger buns lightly. Serve 1/3 cup of meat mixture between toasted bun halves. Serve hot. Yield: 4

Burgers Tropicale.

BOOK REVIEWS

The Mystery of the Little Sister

THE STORY of an ambitious idealist who starts out in the slum tenements on New York's Lower East Side and rises to become a powerful presidential adviser in the days of the New Deal—that's Jerome Weldman's "BEFORE YOU GO" (Random House, $4.95),

Benjamin Franklin Ivey—
"Poison Ivey" as the unloving press sometimes dubs him—is the central figure in this longish novel from a man who's a master at making his stuff readable; and the close comes when the Ivey enigma has been solved. Matched against him are two Italian sisters, Celia Sarno the older, and Julie—Celia the little sister's idol to whom a terrible thing happened off in Portland, Ore, and Julie who has to wait, with you, for just 437 pages before she gets to the bottom of it.

There is a host of other characters: the drunken Gen. Crandall T. MacNeilson who never had it so good before the war came along, and the desperately infatuated Rita Martin, the elder Sarno with his get-rich-quick schemes that always end with him reaching for the bottle, and the mother with her prejudiced demands on her family; Prohst the lawyer and Vinutti the rich suitor too good to be hurt; Ben's aid Vic; mysterious and half legendary figures in the White House or in its awesome shadow. But above them all is the dynamic Ben with the ferocious drive which carries him to dizzy heights where, occasionally, he falters melodramatically. This is Weidman's 17th

This is Weidman's 17th book and 12th novel, including "I Can Get it for You Wholesale."

"THE WOLF TREE" by Helen Rucker (Little, Brown, $3.95): The Crenshaws live in San Francisco, and live they do. As the city goes its boisterous way in the late 19th century, this family draws heavily from a heritage of rich forests and logging mills of the Pacific Northwest for a life of power and ease. There are travels to Europe and schools "back East." Into this haughty clan comes Sarah Lowell, the fair orphaned daughter of a cook in a logging mill, as the bride of Philip Crenshaw. And then, by a strange turn of events, tainted with scandal, she breaks with Philip and thereby finds herself in a powerful position over the proud old family. She travels, slowly gains balance, and finally decides to do some-thing about the state of decadence of her foster family and also about the forests which the Crenshaws have denuded. All in all, it's an absorbing story-moving between San Francisco, and the Pacific Northwest-is rich in the lore and legend of the country.

"JAPANESE FLOWER AR-RANGEMENT: Classical and Modern" by Norman J. Sparnon (Charles E, Tuttle Co., Rutland, Vt., $15): Ikebana, an art in which flowers are used as an expression of the yearning of the Japanese for a peaceful life, comes to full bloom in this magnificent. oversize volume, Mr. Sparnon first went to Japan as a language officer attached to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters, became intensely interested in Japanese floral art, and remained to make an amateur's hobby a master's understanding. There are 100 full color plates, 115 photographs and diagrams, 15-stepby-step lessons in the basic styles which constitute a full home-study course in flower arranging. A summary contains detailed explanation of basic principles, ' 'secrets'! and symbolisms of the art. Mr. Sparnon's glossary covers the vocabulary of Japanese flow-er arrangement, and the appendices are an expert's guide to care and preservation of cut flowers and nomenclature of plants in English, Latinand Japanese, The book should stand as perhaps the most authoritative guide of its kind for many years.

"SURFACE AT THE POLE: The Extraordinary Voyages of the USS Skate" by Comdr. James Calvert, USN; Illustrated (McGraw-Hill, $4.75): With Calvert in command, the atomic submarine USS Skate was sent by the Navy to the Arctic Ocean in 1958 to see if such a vessel could navigate safely beneath its floes or possibly locate openings in the ice cover-to see if the Arctic, of strategic importance to the modern world could be used by the Navy. On that voyage, the Skate surfaced nine times among the shifting floes. The submarine again was sent into the perilous region in 1959, this time in dead of winter when there were no openings in the frozen ice cap, under orders to force her way deliberately through the thin spots in the solid ceiling of ice. Again the Skate was successful. This is the story of those epic vovages, of the dramatic weeks, days, hours and minutes which made history. Comdr. Calvert tells his story simply but vividly, so vividly that the reader, lost in the narra-tive, will feel almost as if he were an actual participant of the historic adventures. Every chapter is engrossing and enlightening.

"THE SATURDAY EVEN-ING POST READER OF WESTERN STORES" edited by E. N. Brandt (Doubleday, $4.95); The Old West was many things—the West of the explorers, of mountain menand Indian wars, of wagon trains, of gold seekers, of

ART BUCHWALD, overseas columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, makes like the tourists he satirizes in "DON'T FORGET TO WRITE" (World, $3.95), a most entertaining collection of his wittiest raticles on film stars, fashions, politics, wine, the international set, wives, cars, tipping, and other topical subjects. The photo was taken in Paris by Leo Jaffe.

ROBERT WILDER

Against a background of America and Europe in the late 1920s and 1930s, Robert Wilder has woven a story of people who inhabited a world where money was the weapon which could bring them everything they wanted—except happiness—in "THE SUN IS MY SHADOW" (Putnam, $3.95). Author of such other best sellers as "Written on the Wind" and "And Ride a Tiger," Wilder lives in La Iolla.

homesteaders and ranchers and cowboys-and this superlative anthology represents all of them. Moreover, the contributors' names are famous in the writings of the West - Stewart Edward White, Owen Wister, Eugene Manlove Rhodes, Bret Harte, Luke Short, Ernest Haycox, to name a few. The stories are the finest, in the opinion of senior editor Brandt, that SatEvePost has published in the past 60 years. Certainly each tale is breath-taking as it takes the reader into the western wilderness for surprising adventure. There are 20 of these yarns, including two novelettes, by Paul Horgan and Conrad Richter.

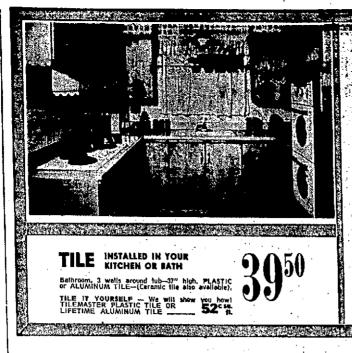

Paperback originals:

"WEDGWOOD AND AR-TISTS" by Harry M. Buten (Buten Museum of Wedgwood, Merion, Pa., $4): An authority and collector of Wedgwood for more than 30 years, Buten presents a compilation of the artists who helped inspire or create the beautiful ceramics that made Josiah Wedgwood famous throughout the world. There are 60 illustrations.

"MERE CHRISTIANITY" by C. S. Lewis (Macmillan, $1.25): Contains revisions and additions of three subjects given on the air by the author, "The Case for Christianity," "Christian Behaviour" and "Beyond Personality."

"THE CASE AGAINST ADOLF EICHMANN" edited by Henry A. Zeiger (Signet, 50c): The fully documented story of the infamous Nazi captured in Argentinato stand trial for the murder of 6 million Jews, with 16 pages of photographs.

"EICHMANN, THE MAN AND HIS CRIMES" by Comer Clarke (Ballantine, 50c): Another version of the commandant of Hitler's ovens and gas chambers in which more than 6 million Jews died

AS DANISH as pastry, Norwegian as sardines and Swedish as smorgasbord are the Scandinavian steam bath and massage — which are really Finnish. Like winedrinking they are examples of the little punctuation marks of life cultivated to a high art by Europeans, but scarcely taken seriously by North Americans.

Scandinavians believe that sweating and having your muscles manipulated by a steel-fingered brute are good for what ails you. Trade is thumping good at the forcefed rexulation emporiums in every Scandinavian city. Prominent businessmen de-vote many hours each week to being torn limb from limb, following up with a haircut, pedicure, shave and beer in the equally thriving satellites of these temperature temples.

The routine is carefully prescribed, involving sessions of dry steam, wet steam and superheated steam for those who can take it.

SURVIVORS ARE given ceremonial showers varying from hot to yeaw! according to the whims of an offduty engineer from the Queen Mary who operates a battery of brass steam valves the likes of which haven't been seen since the Titanic. Your personal bone-crush-baths are only for the socially-minded resort set. In Western-style hotels, your bath is private.

Even in Japanese hotels, you call for your bath. They fill the sunken tub and summon you. It's all yours and there is a lock on the door. (Don't soap in the tub. Use the little faucet and the wooden bucket and sit on the stool. Rinse yourself on the floor, with the bucket. Then soak in the tub.)

You get very good French food in Tahiti. Also some good Chinese food. 6 I recommend Chez Chapiteau (better than it looks), Les Tropiques, Kaikiki, Iaorana Villa.

Don't sell that raw fish short. They marinate it in lime juice, which "cooks" it. And, with a topping of coco-nut, it comes up like a very good seafood cocktail. The only really raw fish is served in Japan — and that's better than you think, too.

MEET Merrill K. Guertin, a virtual one man chamber of commerce who undoubtedly ranks as one of Uncle Sam's best customers, mail wise.

In 1948 Guertin founded Best Western Motels, made up of owners of 600 topranking motels in 25 western states and Canada ('western' is broadly interpreted to include Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana).

His organization distributes the Best Western Travel Guide, a compact volume that fits into a breast pocket and covers 26,000 miles of principally traveled routes in the aforementioned states and Canada; total mileage more than 60 routes; total miles between principal cities and points of interest, and miles between each town, eliminating continual reference to road maps.

And hold your hats! Five million copies of this guide—124 pages, with four-color cover—are printed each year, weighing more than three-quarters of a million pounds, enough to fill 5½ freight cars!

The guides are distributed by all major oil companies. Standard Oil Co. distributes one million is a y s. Guertin. Others are dispensed by Best Western members, the 560 members of Quality Courts, affiliated association operating in the east, and more than 2,000 other distributors including travel bur eaus, chambers of Commerce, banks, libraries, and so on:

Guertin's offices, at 4217 E. Ocean Blvd, receive as many as 1,000 letters a day. Requests for the guide and information have been received from every nation except those behind the Iron Curtain.

Guertin, secretary and chief administrative officer of Best Western Motels, says each member motel is inspected every 90 days. Each member must inspect three member motels and file a written report; each of the 50 district governors must inspect all member motels in his district twice each year and file a written report. A roving representative, a paid employed devotes his entire time calling on an d inspecting member motels and motels he thinks will qualify for membership.

What must motels have to qualify for membership? Private baths, ceramic file, carpets, good box-spring mattresses, good pillows, good lighting, heat and ventilation, attractive offices. Maids must wear uniforms. Swimming pools and television are desired. The guide lists these and it lists motels that accept credit cards.

Guertin says that Best Western promotes a good deal of tourist travel from foreign countries. It works closely with two large airlines and has been successful in bringing large touring groups to the West.

WEEKEND GADABOUT: Truly one of the West's most

Truly one of the West's most colorful fiestas, Santa Barbara's Old Spanish Days celebration opens Wednesday for five days of pageantry, singing, dancing, costuming, parades and shows.

"El Desfile Historico," the magnificently colorful parade, will start at 1:45 p. m. Thursday. In the line of march will be floats, bands, horsemen, dancers. "Estrellas de Noche" (Stars of the Night), an old Spanish Days show, will be held three nights beginning at 8:30 Thursday in County. Boyl. "Competition of the light will be held two nights, beginning Friday, with a Sunday matinee following. Another high light will be "El Desfile de los Ninos," a parade of costumed children with homemade floats, at 10 a.m. Saturday. Other drawling cards will be a Spanish market-place, Spanish parties, arf exhibit, street dances each night, garden tours and exhibits.

age 12, lives at 1622 Cherry Ave., and he owns a dog, Queenie; a cat, called Kitty Kat; a blue parakeet, aptly named Sky, and Bandy, a hamster. All four pets are the best of friends.

The best way to assure harmony between pets is to start them off together as babies, and especially should a cat be young if it is to live harmoniously with a bird. Let the kitten play around the bird in its cage and watch the bird's antics. A little later remove the bird from the cage, hold it gently in your hands and permit the kitten to sniff it. Still later, hold kitty in your hands while the bird flies around the room. If the kitten reaches out a paw for it, tap him with a folded newspaper and say "No no" firmly but soltly.

KITTENS HAVE BEEN trained so that they could be placed directly in cages with birds with no harm resulting. However, one should be on guard and remember that a cat may still attack a bird until it is old enough to have lost its early day playfulness. The "battle" is probably won if the cat will permit the bird to est out of his feeding dish.

Grown cats, especially Slamese, hold resentment toward intruders in a domain they feel is their own An adult dog may seem content to look at a new pet when you are near but lunge upon it when your back is turned, then look the picture of injured innocence when you face him again

Patience, praise, avoidance of favoritism, making each pet feel loved, wanted and invidual, have turned even inveterate haters into pets that will accept other pets in the home. For discipline use a folded newspaper, one of the leather crack-ers sold in pet shops or a slip-collar. If you are abusive, you will defeat your purpose.

ANIMAL TRAINERS, of course, employ various means to control their charges. An electric collar to which a cord is attached is sometimes placed around a dog's neck When the dog chases another animal the leash is strained, and the dog receives a very mild shock. An electric prod developed to move cattle that is powered by flashlight batteries is also used, but with discretion. These do no harm to the dog and, in fact, are safer than having a cat claw at the dog's eyes or jump upon his back and dig its claws into the hide.

Dogs must learn to get along with cats when being trained to lead blind persons. Slip-collars are used on the dogs, and when the dogs show interest in cats (kept near the kennels at these schools on purpose) are jerked by the leash. After a few corrections, a smart dog learns that chasing cats will not be tolerated.

Over-exposure occurs too frequently in summer snapshooting but tonal contrast when properly printed can be effective, as in this photo by Wolf Wehran at Laguna Beach, using a Super Ikonta II, normal film and shooting at 1/100 M.

By the Shutterbug

SUMMER snap shooting soars to a peak now and makes it necessary to emphasize an annual warning. Do not judge your pictures hastily on the basis of the first set of prints which you get from commercial processors of films.

Too many "bad pictures" are actually only bad prints that got by because of the increased volume of business and mechanical handling or automation.

Camera fans must learn to "read" their negatives so that they can tell when a print is good or bad and whether it can be improved.

obvious printing mistakes have been made; such as cutting off feet or portions of the head. Before you blame your own poor marksmanship—and it can happen—check your negative first. You'll often find that the missing anatomy is in the negative but close to the border. With more care in centering or masking negatives, we'll have more "wholesome" people in our pictures.

A negative is viewed properly when the shiny, gelatine side is toward the eye. If the dull, slightly embossed emulsion side is held up to the eye, the picture will be seen in reversed position.

Negatives can be described as thin, normal or dense. A thin negative is transparent and indicates insufficient exposure or possible under development. A dense negative is heavy or black and indicates too much exposure or over-development. Thin negatives normally make dant they are pulled out too soon to prevent a black print. Dense negatives normally make washed-out or light prints.

NEGATIVES CAN also be classified as contrasty or soft. A contrasty negative combines thin and dense areas with no range of tones between. A soft negative has little contrast range in its picture area.

CAMERA ANGLES

Read Your Negative

Normal negatives have a full range of tones from thin areas to dense portions and will make prints with rich blacks in the shadows to pure whites in the high lights.

In order to make good quality prints from so many different types of negatives, paper normally comes in four or five different grades of contrast. A contrasty negative is printed on a "soft" paper to compensate or minimize its deficiencies whereas a soft negative is printed on a contrasty paper to make up for what it lacks.

In many cases faulty prints from a drug store or mail order processing plant may be due to improper selection of paper. Sometimes automatic printing machines cannot cope with certain problem negatives. If they print for the thin areas of the negatives, the dense portions will be washed out or too light. If they print for the dense areas, the thin portions will be sacrificed or too black.

"GOOD PRINTS from such negatives can be made only with individual attention and are best handled by enlarging. An expert, by skillful manipulation, can "burn in the dense portions of a negative and "dodge" or hold back the thin areas to produce a balanced print with a full graduation of tones.

YOUR GARDEN

Can Have Garden Fun with

By Murtha Hurley

GROW GOURDS for real gardening fun, From one package of seed, there's no telling what varied and novel shapes of fruit will adorn your vines.

And quickly, too. The vines develop so rapidly, you can almost see them grow.

If you have nimble fingers, you can make attractive objects with the unique fruits mail boxes, flower holders, lanterns, children's toys. Many Long Beach area gardeners use gourds to make colorful "Charm Chains," combining gourds with pine cones, bottle brush and mag-nolia fruit pods painted in bright shades and strung on raffia.'

Gourds are the non-edible, hard-shelled fruit of tender annual vines. There are two types: one the large uncol-ored Lagenaria with white, night-blooming flowers. This species was grown by early Americans who used the fruit for utensils. Every colonial kitchen had its salt box made from a gourd Dippers, clubs, bottle and powder-horn shapes derive from this group. The second varie-Cucurbita, includes the small colorful ornamental gourds. These have yellow flowers that bloom in the daytime.

In the summer, gourds serve a practical as well as an ornamental purpose in the garden: They can be grown on a trellis, over an arbor, against a fence or porch, or to disguise an unsightly spot. They will grow quickly to a screen of handsome, decorative, dense, dark green foltage.

The vines climb to 12 feet. Being tropical in origin, the plants flourish with heat and moisture. They also need a rich soil.

Sow gourd seeds directly into the spot where they are to grow and develop. The to grow and develop. plants do not transplant well.

feet apart. Sow 4 to 6 seeds to each hill. After sowing, cover the seed bed with paper or a piece of gunny sacking. Water above the covering until germination which occurs in two to three weeks, depending on the weather. When first sprouts show through the soil, remove the covering and thin the plants to 12 inches apart, using 2 of the strongest seedlings in each group.

In about 6 weeks, flower buds will start to open. From then on growth is very rapid. Do not water the vines after ers may drop. Since gourds are tendril-bearing vines, they must be supported. Train the vines so the fruits will hang and hold their shape. Tie vines to the support with plant ties. When the main stems are about 7 feet long, cut the stems to induce the plants to produce laterals, where fruits grow, early. Should the vines keep setting fruit late in the season, snip them off to strengthen the maturing fruits.

Leave the fruit .on vines until fully ripened. The fruits will stay green all summer, then ripen to a golden brown. This usually oc-curs towards the end of October or early in Novemher.

When the stem attaching the gourd to the main branch turned brown, the fruit has is ripe. The vine looks dead; the skin is tough and the tennear the fruit are shriveled.

Do not pick the fruit until. pressure with the fingernail dents the shell. Leave 3 inches of stem attached to each gourd.

After picking, place the gourds in a wire rack in a light, airy room where the temperature is about 60 degrees.

About December the gourds should be light and dry and ready for use. Any gourds that are soft and spongy should be discarded. Scrub each gourd with a small brush and warm, not hot, After scrubbing water.

Penguin likenesses appear from deftly handled gourds. Many other shapes possible.

scrape the skin off with a dull knife. Then give each gourd a coat of varnish, shellac, floor wax or bright-colored paint.

Feed 'Em!

The wise gardener realizes that he has to put just as much (or more) of the nutrients back into the soil as the plants take out if the garden is to thrive over the years. During the summer, the lawn should be given light feedings every month or six weeks rather than larger feedings at less frequent intervals.

This advice also goes for roses and other shrubs, as well as flowers and vegetables. Most gardens get about half the fertilizer that they should be getting.

AFTER VISITING the Carlbbean and Hawaiian Islands, and comparing what we saw there, we can truth-fully say, "They may have more ideal climate and rain fall for natural plant growth, than we in Southern California have, but they still can't beat us for lots of colorful flowers!"

To make Southern California still more beautiful, we should plant for more floral color in the fronts of our homes.

Two home owners we have in mind have camellias in front of their west exposure porch, and edging of saxifrage in front of the lawn, spring bulbs, and primroses in between and in front of the camellias. A tall pepper tree at southwest front of house, casts light shade part of the afternoon to guard against the afternoon sun beating down on the plants.

Throughout the winter months and well into spring, the camellias are a joy to behold, with low saxifrage adding a touch of pink color. Soon, the layender wistaria vine over the porch pergola, spring bulbs and English primroses burst into bloom.

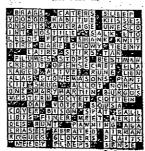

By Dorothy Jonson

is generally conceded that the citrus tree in the back yard can be best sprayed for scale and spider during the summer months. That doesn't mean that you should go out and spray when the temperature is 95 degrees. However, it is safe to use a good stable oil emulsion if you spray on a cool day or in the cool part of a warm day.

The element of timeliness is very important in all methods of pest control and it seems to require warm weather to bring back scale, deadly enemy of citrus, into a state of migration when it can be most easily destroyed. The time is right, too, for getting a good control of mites and red spider.

Irrigate the tree thoroughly before you spray.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

There is pleasure in having beautiful flowers in one's front garden, a pleasure to be shared with neighbors.

They make that whole planting still more colorful. This type of landscaping is but an example what can be done, when a home gardener decides to add more color in the front of the home to share it with neighbors, and the assers-by.

ROSES AND other blooms soon add to the scene as the wistaria fades. Perennials and annuals carry the color scheme along late into fall.

Nurserymen are happy to advise gardeners on plantings for the year-around color that is available to Long Beach area homeowners, in trade for a little care there is a rich reward in a beautiful front flower garden.

Laguna's 'Fort Knox'

of having found the fabled lost mine of Pegleg Smith. Driving up the curving Banner Grade from Banner, the visitor sees the sign "Fort Knox" at the entrance of Charlot Canyon and, if lucky, a loquacious bearded character named Red Jackson will be on hand to show him around. In 1870, one Louis Redman was prospecting in the gulch and he was seeking not gold but grapes. He spotted a vine festooning a tree near the creekbed. Parting the vines and branches, he found instead of a cluster of grapes something that glittered; it was the beginning of a threefoot vein that proved out as high as $180 a ton. This became the Golden Charlot Mine, which in 1873 was grossing $10,000 a week.

A rugged hike or a jeep ride up Chariot Canyon takes the visitor past the ruins of an assay office that was destroyed before the turn of the century by a flash flood. Only the stone chimney remains. At the Ready Relief Mine, Frank Herrin maintains his modern stamp mill, with thousands of dollars worth of new machinery at the disposal of any optimistic citizen who wants his ore processed.

BEYOND THE MILL, the road over which heavily laden mules and burros trod when Grant was in the White House becomes even rougher for a mile or so to a waterfall of, incredible beauty, scene of the activities of a dedicated young prospector, Dick Tallman.

Tallman belongs to the new school of educated prospectors as distinguished from the desert rat. He is from Pontiac, Ili, and studied geology at Eureka College, Eureka Ill. He is in Charlot Canyon primarily to test new suction dredge equipment which he believes will revolutionize placer mining and crowd California's mountain streams with thousands of happy prospectors in due time. At the base of the Chariot Canyon waterfall a crystal-clear pool has been formed, with sand that may extend to a depth of 50 feet or more. The water and sand mixture is pumped into a 10-foot sluice box covered with riffled corduroy material, a British product commonly used in Australia and New Zealand to sift fine gold.

This dredge, he says, may not be nearly as much fun as the old practice of handpanning the streams but is bound to produce more of the stuff that is packed into the yaults of the real Fort Knox.

The rugged, hard-rock miners will have no part of the suction dredge, which they say is strictly for the birds (or placer miners). They still continue to blast away in ancient and new shafts and adits (tunnels to the uninformed) and take their ore to Herrin's stamp mill in the hope of finding the end of the rainbow.

A PARADE QUIZ

They ran for Vice President

Back in 1932, the Broadway musical Of Thee I Sing introduced the unforgettable character of Alexander Throttlebottom, Vice President of the U.S., whose chief complaint was that nobody had ever heard of him. But things have changed, and since then the Vice President has taken an increasing part in national affairs. The two men recently chosen by their parties as Vice Presidential candidates are outstanding Americans known to everyone. But how about nominees of past campaigns? Candidates shown here are in chronological order from 1956 back to 1940. Can you name each candidate and his party? Answers are below.

1 He started as a California lawyer.

2 Cumpaigned in a coonskin cap.

3 He's a Senator from Alabama. 4 Ex-California governor, noted jurist.

5 He was known as "The Veep."

6 Sponsored a famous Amendment.

7 His hobby: playing the piano.

A new trend in medicine is being developed

FOR TEENAGERS ONLY

Short girl visits Permanente Clinic, Oakland, Calif., to see if her growth can be stimulated. To teenagers, height, weight and degree of moturation are prime causes of concern.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

THE THEN YEARS are the healthiest in life. Yet doctors are learning that these years often hide physical and emotional illnesses that can have lifelong consequences. That's why an exciting new kind of health care, geared especially to teen needs, is spreading across the U.S.

In Boston, Philadelphia, Denver, Oakland, Calif., and points between, thousands of teenagers already are deriving real benefits from adolescent medicine at special clinics. In 10 years, if the trend continues, every major American city should have special facilities to treat teenage boys and girls.

Happily, results of treatment with this age group usually are very good. That's because teenagers have flexible minds and bodies and marvelous energy, and they are deeply concerned with their own well-being. In most cases, a 15-year-old who receives therapy similar to that given to an adult bounces back to health far more quickly.

In the background are special complicating factors that fill the teen years with uncertainty and self-consciousness, and create feelings in a youngster that he is alone on an island of misunderstanding.

An 8-year-old or a 35-year-old is far less concerned with his size, for example, than a teeriager. To the latter, matters of height, weight and state of maturity are overwhelmingly important.

The Wonder of It Ali

Then there's the battle to grow up. Teenagers are moving from total dependence to total independence. They now question what they formerly accepted on faith. Inevitably there is a certain amount of rebellion.

As one medical worker in the field puts it, "The teenager has the physical equipment to act like an adult without quite knowing how." As a result, ailments seen in a typical adolescent clinic are endless in variety. For example:

The 16-year-old girl who is depressed and weepy because she believes she sweats too much.

The 14-year-old boy who shuns friends because he thinks his acne makes him ugly and unacceptable.

The overweight girl who is miserable because she doesn't have dates.

The youngster, who, wondering and confused, simply but desperately wants someone to tell him "the facts of life."

Further, "ordinary" diseases present special problems when they hit teenagers. The diabetic teenager finds it tough to stick to his rigid diet because diet fads run rampant in his age group. Energy expenditure for the teenage heart or tuberculosis patient may be difficult to control. Their natural desires make tecnagers want to exploit their energies.

An adolescent with a deformity also requires special care since at his age neither he nor his friends accept the disfigurement.

In the minds of many teenage patients certain questions keep pounding away. Here are some of the most common: "Am I popular?" "Do I fit in with the crowd?" "Am I too short, too tall, too fat, too thin, overdeveloped, underdeveloped?"

Complicating the entire outlook of teenagers is the belief of many of them that they cannot discuss their problems with their parents. Even if the parents are genuinely warm and receptive, many teenagers shy away from "talking it out" with Mother or Dad.

Domestic Relations

Thus, one 14-year-old boy in Pennsylvania failed completely ever to let on to his parents that he felt miserable and rejected and overshadowed by his 17-year-old brother.

Only after he became depressed and withdrawn and began to fail in school did his parents come to realize what was happening. A few visits with a psychiatrist, along with real support from his parents, helped him overcome his emotional turmoil.

Added to such growth and maturation problems is another factor. While teenagers have the illnesses common to everyone else, they have special maladies unique to their age group. These include bone and joint disorders, nutritional problems, skin disorders, menstrual ills and a variety of injuries, many of them sports-incurred.

Put all the teenager's deep concerns together, physical and emotional, and you have an enlarged range of medical concern. The boundaries of teen medicine have two basic aspects.

First, teenagers benefit from medication and surgery prescribed for specific conditions common to all of us. The second factor—a big plus in treatment—is what Dr. J. Roswell Gallagher, Chief of the Adolescent Unit, the Children's Medical Center, Boston, calls simply "the willing ear."

In most teenage treatment centers, doctors believe that a major part of their task is just to listen to the teenager, to provide counseling and to show him that someone in the adult world is as concerned with his health as the teenager himself.

Such concern is uniquely important for tecnagers since puberty, the most profound change of their years, opens the door on a host of uncertainties.

Sex becomes a paramount interest and often a subject of fear, vast misinformation and misinterpretation. Hormonal changes affect hair growth, voice, skin and

Husky youth warried about his health is examined by Permanente dactor. Youngster was found to be in good condition: At one point in the checkup, doctor reassured the boy that his heart might beat quickly for a few moments "if a pretty girl walked by."

body build. Emotional complications can come thick and fast. As Dr. Gallagher says:

"Many adolescents, suddenly presented with a much larger body, handle it awkwardly... and having a man's or woman's size, wish to behave and be treated as if they were adults... Not only do the trunk and extremities develop, but so also are there rapid changes in the sexual organs..."

Take the case of a 13-year-old girl who had just begun to menstruate. Her mother had explained the process to her, but in doing so had planted fears of pain and discomfort in her daughter's mind.

When this girl arrived at an adolescent clinic in New York, she was almost hysterical. She did not want to experience what she had been told would be an inevitable pain. In this case counseling and a little drug treatment worked; the girl now is 14½ and displays a much healthier outlook.

Or there's the 14-year-old boy in Columbus, Ohio, who had to undergo hernia surgery. Another youngster mistakenly told him that the operation would result in injury to his sexual organs. The explanation of the surgery by an understanding doctor quickly served to dissolve the boy's fears.

A Universal Goal

No matter what the question, teenage medicine has one universal goal. That is to create a healthy and maturing attitude in the teenager's mind so that he will learn to live with his problem, whether it is real or imagined. (Psychosomatic problems, upset emotions that bring on real physical symptoms, are common to this age group.)

Doctors working in the field of teenage medicine feel that in some cases—acne, for instance—it is more important to establish in the minds of the patient that illness does not mean the end of the world than to embark on an elaborate program of complicated treatment for the illness itself.

Parents can—and often do—play a leading role in this job of helping their teen sons and daughters over health hurdles. However, there still are parents who fail to explain the facts of maturing to their teenagers, fail to bolster their youngsters' confidence in themselves, fail to provide the support so desperately needed by some teenagers.

Says one medical authority: "At times parents refuse to give their teenagers generous measures of responsibility. Many youngsters are perfectly capable of assuming it, and indeed are searching for ways to prove themselves."

Recognizing this, most teen clinics try hard to put the patient as much on his own as possible. In this way an atmosphere is created in which the teenager sees his own doctor about his own problems, with a minimum of outside parental control.

At the Adolescent Unit in the Children's Medical Center, the teenage patient himself is given appointments, instructions for carrying out medical orders and a great measure of responsibility for carrying out those instructions.

Dr. Gallagher declares that most teen patients (his unit sees them between ages 12 and 21) are perfectly capable of following doctor's orders and of behaving like adult patients.

Parents of his unit's patients are seen before treatment is begun, and again whenever it is deemed necessary. Other centers proceed in about the sameway in dealing with parents.

Occasionally, though, it proves necessary to call in a parent because his actions or attitudes are at the root of his child's problem.

Dr. Marshall B. Kreidberg of The Boston Floating Hospital (New England Medical Center) tells of a 15-year-old boy who complained of muscle and joint pains. First they were believed to be psychosomatic. As doctors explored further, they found that this youngster was being regularly forced by his father to perform heavy physical labor.

A reasonable and devoted man, the father simply believed that a "growing boy" has a man's strength. (There are many parents who have the same mistaken notion.) When the father was told that teenagers do have physical limitations, his son's chores were lightened-and the muscle and joint pains disappeared.

Where does adolescent medicine go from here? Actually, it has been gathering momentum only for the last few years.

Drs. Barbara Korsch and Joan Morgenthau of New York Hospital, among others, hold that adolescent clinics will lean more and more toward preventive services, that is, services to the healthy adolescent that seek to keep him well.

Tie-in with Schools

Already this type of service is available widely in pediatrics and in other areas of medicine. As for preventable teenage health problems, Dr. Korsch lists TB, nutritional ills, "emotional desperation" and vision and hearing defects.

She believes that preventive clinics for teenagers should be tied in with the schools so there could be systematic case-finding. One British researcher in this field has suggested that perhaps the most common battleground for teenage conflict is the school itself.

The ideal of preventive clinics everywhere still is some years off. But this much is certain: a running start has been made toward recognizing the illnesses of the teenager and treating them intelligently. Harvard Medical School staff members have begun to offer post-graduate training in adolescent medicine, and similar training opportunities are sure to open in the near future.

In general more and more doctors are agreeing with what was written some time ago in the staid New England Journal of Medicine.

"A neglected field of medicine has been that of adolescence; the explanation is simple. Until recently the pediatrician has been preoccupied with premature babies, transfusions, feeding problems, running

"The internist also has been busy with the ills of adulthood and advancing age and has still to come to the period of adolescence. Yet the field is particularly important, marking as it does the transition from boy to man and from girl to woman."

Dressing for dancing

THE FIRST THING to look for in a dance dress, says Marge Champion, is a "full and swinging skirt." The pretty blonde, half of the famed dance team, thinks there's nothing like an easy-flowing skirt with sinug waistline to add to a girl's ballroom grace. The Champions, in New York to celebrate Gower's success as director of the hit Broadway musical Bye Bye Birdie, give PARADE readers their ideas on dressing for dancing in photos here and on the cover. Their major rule: choose a bodice that allows plenty of arm movement. Other fashion-smart suggestions from Marge: clear colors like her own favorite black and white, no clanking jewelry and gloves that help to keep your hands dry.

WHAT DO DOCTORS DO FOR TENSE NERVOUS HEADACHES?

3 out of 4 recommend the ingredients in ANACIN for headache pain

WHEN you suffer pain from headache, neuritis or neuralgia, why not take what most doctors recommend—the ingredients in Anacin for fast relief! Here is why Anacin gives such superior pain-relief. Mere aspirin or even aspirin with buffering contains only one pain reliever. They have no special medication to relax your nervous tension. Anacin contains a number of medically proven ingredients, including special medication that not only relieves pain incredibly fast, but also relaxes tension and releases painful pressure on nerves. Anacin Tablets are safer, too. They have a smoother action and do not irritate or upset the stomach. Buy Anacin today!

Why ANACIN gives more complete PAIN-RELIEF

Most headaches are caused by tension that presses on nerves and results in headache pain. Tension headaches call for the special medication in Anacin. Unlike aspirin or buffered aspirin which contains entry one pain reliever and has no special medication to relax tension—Anacin contains medication that (1) relaxes tension (2) releases pressure on nerves (3) relieves pressure on nerves (3) relieves a better total effect—more camplete pain relief.

THE DOUBTING DODGER

RANK HOWARD has been called "the new Babe Ruth"—and with reason. Standing 6'7" and weighing 240, he has thumped home runs well over 500 feet. Al Campanis, chief scout for the Los Angeles Dodgers, flatly predicts: "Some day Howard will break Ruth's record of 60 homers in a season."

Such predictions make shy, quiet Frank Howard wince. "I'm not even sure I can play in the majors," he says. "I'm only trying to find out."

This self-doubt astounds other ball players, who watch Howard take batting practice with awe in their faces. Since he became a regular with the Dodgers carly this season, 23-year-old Howard—only three years in pro baseball—has made outfielders edge back toward the fences when he comes to bat. Midway through the season, he led the Dodgers in homers, though he had played in only two-thirds of the games. One homer was the longest (562 feet) ever hit in Pittsburgh. "In my 26 years in baseball," says Dodger coach Pete Reiser, "I've never seen anyone hit a ball harder than Howard."

Powerful swing of Howard's astonishes even ball players. His big trouble has been an inability to tell good pitches from bad ones.

Why does Howard doubt he's a major leaguer? For the answer, you have to understand Frank Howard.

He is acuse, shy and more than a little naive. His face often has a tight, worried look. When he is not doing well, he avoids people, goes off by himself to stew. And when he stews, he dreams up imaginary conflicts.

During spring training, for example, the Dodger brass fervently hoped Howard would make the team (a right-handed long-ball hitter is deadly in the Los Angeles Coliseum). But when he slumped, Howard began to see imaginary enemies. He accused manager Walter Alston of not giving him a chance. "Frank has got to learn to be more patient," says Reiser. "He's too determined to make good."

Howard comes from a family of small means in Columbus, Ohio. While attending Ohio State, he received a $108,000 bonus for signing with the Dodgers. Today, on the threshold of even greater wealth—he may be the next $100,000-a-year superstar—Howard feels more and more the pressure to succeed.

But there are signs that he is becoming more confident. After winning a full-time job and pulling up his batting average to above .300, he became more relaxed, even joking with interviewers instead of returning a crisp "No, sir," or "Yes, sir." But his face turns serious when Ruth's record is mentioned. "I don't know anything about that," he says. "I'm just thankful to be with the Dodgers."

Little George and the

by SID ROSS

JEFFERSON CITY, MO. TEN-YEAR-OLD George Sommerer slept peacefully. A few feet away, bound and terrified, sat his brother Floyd, 22, and his 72-year-old grandmother. Pointing guns at them were two desperate escaped convicts:

For the sleeping boy this was to be an afternoon of which dreams of glory are made. George would soon pit his courage and cunning against the two convicts.

He also would learn a lesson: that there is some good in all men-even "bad guys."

George's afternoon of adventure began about 3 o'clock on a warm, bright Sunday in late May of this year. A 1956 sedan had lurched to a stop in a swirl of dust outside the Sommerer farmhouse. A thin, worried-looking man jumped out of the car. Floyd Sommerer came out to meet him.

The thin man jerked out a knife: Floyd lunged, pushing the knife away. The two men pitched to the ground, grappling in the dust. Another man-taller and older than his companion-leaped out of the sedan. He punched Floyd viciously on the head, dazing him.

Moments later the two men held knives menacingly at Floyd and his grandmother, Mrs. Augusta Sommerer. "We just broke out of Missouri prison," said the wiry man, his face pale, his fingers trembling. "I'm afraid we'll have to bother you."

The nervous convict was David Parrish, 25, serving a 10-year sentence for robbery. The older man was Cecil Lillibridge, 39, doing 20 years for robbery.

Inside the house the two convicts scooped up a pistol, rifle and shotgun belonging to the Sommerers. After hiding their stolen car in a shed, they tied up Floyd and his grandmother, putting them in a bedroom. On one of the beds in the room, comics scattered around him, slept George.

A few minutes later the convicts tied up Oscar Sommerer, the father of Floyd and George; he had been out hunting.

Lillibridge was icy calm and methodical. But young Parrish chain-smoked, his tace ashen, his trembling hands waving the rifle. All the Sommerers felt the same fear: George is going to wake up and scream, frightening that nervous one into shooting us.

Quiet Please

George did wake up. But only Floyd noticed. "They're convicts," Floyd told George softly. "Don't be afraid."

George said nothing. An excellent student, he reads voraciously. He also likes comics (his hero is the Lone Ranger). "I decided to play possum," he says, "keeping my eyes closed and my ears open."

At 5 o'clock Mrs. Sommerer drove up to the house from the restaurant where she worked. She too was tied up. Then Lillibridge decided to wake up George: "He tied my hands with rags," George remembers. "He asked me if I liked school and so on. Then he asked me if I had really been asleep."

George came clean. "I told him I'd been playing possum. But he said nothing. He took me into the other bedroom and tied my feet so I couldn't move off the bed."

George could see and hear what was going on in the other bedroom. "We don't want to e (left) shows how he used wire coat hanger to snare scissors from sewing box. Above: His two captors, Cecil Lillibridge (left) and David Parrish.

keep you tied up, Grandma," Lillibridge told the older woman. "It might hurt your circulation. We'll lock you up in a building outside, where you'll be comfortable.'

George was greatly surprised. "They didn't act much like the bad guys on TV," he says. The old guy [Lillibridge] was almost like the Lone Ranger. The Lone Ranger, he's a gentleman."

About this time a couple of neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Strobel, both 52, dropped in for a visit. The convicts seized them and tied up Mr. Strobel. But they had other plans for . his wife. They were worried now that Mrs. Sommerer would be missed at the restaurant where she worked. They decided the safest course was to hit the road. The convicts took money, new clothes and—as "insurance"— Mrs. Strobel.

They got into Floyd's car, Mrs. Strobel between them, and sped off. But they had overlooked two things: 1) the telephone line, and 2) a small boy's ingenuity.

"I saw a coat hanger on the bed," George says, "and I figured how I'd get loose." His mother's sewing box was on a table near by. In the box, George knew, were her scissors.

. He got the coat hanger between his hands, worked the hook around the box and slowly pulled the box toward him. "Don't let the box drop," called out Mrs. Sommerer, as she and the others watched from the next room. "If it falls you won't be able to reach it."

Easy Does It

"I got the box as close to me as I could," George continues, "but I still couldn't reach it with my hands. So I used the hanger to fool around with the latch of the box to open the lid. It took me about 5 minutes."

The scissors were on top. George leaned over and hooked the seissors with the hanger. Then, carefully and gently-scarcely daring to breathe-he delicately lifted the seissors to the bed.

The rest was easy. George cut himself loose, then freed the rest of the family. They called the police. A few hours later the convicts were back in jail, captured after a short chase. Their hostage, Mrs. Strobel, was unharmed. And George was a hero.

"Mom hugged and kissed me," he recalls. "And a policeman said the convicts wouldn't have been caught so soon if I hadn't gotten loose so quick. But it wasn't much," he adds, shrugging, "any kid could've done it."

His hero is still the Lone Ranger, but George has no urge to copy the Ranger's exultant yell, "Hi-Yo Silver," now that the "bad guys" are in jail. "I'm glad they caught those guys," George told PARADE's reporter. "But they were pretty nice. They treated me and Grandma swell."

He sat silent, glancing at a comic. "I'll tell you," he said thoughtfully, "I don't think I'd like to be the Lone Ranger.

The captives (i. to r.): Oscar Sommerer, his mother, his son Floyd, his wife Marie-and George.

Mel Ferrer and his British wife, Audrey Hepburn, both enjoy successful screen careers.

Hollywood husbands and their

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD. No HOLLYWOOD ACTOR in his right mind will say that foreign women make better wives than American women.

So forthright a statement might well cost him a sizable share of his domestic female audience. But I would like to submit for your consideration a list of American movie actors who have taken foreign mates in the past 10 years:

Kirk Douglas and Anne Boydens (Belgion)

Gregory Peck and Veronique Passani

Ernest Borgnine and Katy Jurado (Mexican)

Victor Mature and Joy Urwick (English)

Robert Taylor and Ursula Thiess

John Wayne and Pilar Pallette (Peruvian)

Henry Fonda and Afdera Franchetti (Italian)

Mel Ferrer and Audrey Hepburn

Barry Coe and Jorunn Kristiansen (Norwegian)

Brett Halsey and Luciana Paluzzi (Italian)

There are many others: Rory Calhoun who is martied to Spanish-born dancer, Lita Baron; Howard Duff who is married to British-born Ida Lupino;

Barry Coe's wife, Jorunn Kristiansen, an ex-Miss Norway, turned down career in films.

Marlon Brando who married an Irish girl named O'Callaghan under the impression that she was an Indian bride named Anna Kashfi.

The question is: Why?

How come these wealthy, handsome, talented men who have the pick of the domestic crop take overseas brides?

I asked this question recently of Barry Coe, who a few months ago married a Norwegian beauty, Jorunn Kristiansen. Coe said, "One reason is that the American girls we meet in Hollywood do not make the best marriage partners. Many are ambitious, driving, career-obsessed. To them a husband is an incidental and not the major force in their lives. Take my wife, by contrast. She came to this country as Miss Norway. She was offered a movie contract. But when she met me I became the biggest thing in her life. She gave up movies. Her career now is to make me happy."

Gregory Peck's French bride, Veronique Passoni, never knew his days of struggle

In further elaboration of that theme, take the case of Robert Taylor and Ursula Thiess. Taylor divorced Barbara Stanwyck, who was not about to give up her career for any man. In 1954 he married Ursula Thiess, an actress from Hamburg, a divorcee and mother of two children by a German director.

The Second Mrs. Taylor

The new Mrs. Taylor quickly abandoned her acting career, announced that all she wanted from life was to give her husband a family and make him happy. Today the Taylors have two babies of their own, are considered one of the happiest couples in Hollywood.

Actors who have in turn married American and overseas brides maintain that foreign girls are more tolerant of an actor's idiosyncrasics and whims. Kirk Douglas, for example, is admittedly not an easy man to live with. But his present wife, a former press agent of part Belgian origin, handles him with deftness and deference. The result: their marriage is delightfully successful.

An American girl who was married to a Hollywood star for several years and then divorced declares that what is involved in this whole subject of foreign versus domestic brides is standards.

"By background and training," she explains, "we American girls are raised to believe that husbands should treat us as equals. When we marry a man we expect that in return for our love, housekeeping and child-bearing he will treat us honestly and with respect.

"European women," she says, "expect to be treated as inferiors. That's why they make good wives for actors. No actor wants a wife to share the spotlight with him. By nature he's a ham, a man who needs constant praise and ego-support. Very rarely will he put up with a wife who knew him in his days of struggle and failure.

"Take Greg Peck. I remember when-Greg and his first wife, Greta, lived in New York. Greg was a struggling young actor from San Diego trying to make a living. He hurt his back while taking acting lessons and was classified 4F in the draft. During World War II there was a tremendous shortage of leading men in Hollywood. Almost immediately Greg zoomed to the top. But his first wife remembered him when.

"Eventually they were divorced and Greg married a French girl who idolizes him, who never knew him in the old days. To her, he's always been the big and famous movie star."

Another California ex-wife of an actor told me: "I have two daughters, and the only hard-and-fast rule I've ever laid down to them is this: 'Never marry an actor. Remember your father.'"

A FARMER bought a mule, and the fellow who sold him the animal warned him that the mule would work very hard provided he would show a great deal of love and affection. The farmer took the mule home and showed it all the love and affection he could for one week-but the mule wouldn't budge. Disgusted, the farmer complained to the dealer that he either had to correct the situation or return his money. The man went to the farmand saw immediately that the mule was very well taken care of and loved by the farmer. He then picked up a two-by-four in the barn and whacked the mule over the head with it. Horrified, the farmer screamed, "I thought you said I should show him affection?" Replied the mule dealer, "Sure-but you've got to get his attention first!"

AN OLD MAN living in an apartment with his grandson heard that Jascha Heifetz had moved next door. He was so overcome with emotion at the news that he ran into Heifetz's apartment and said, "Oh, Mr. Heifetz, to think that such a great man as yourself is living next door to me. I can't believe it! My grandson will be overjoyed—he worships you." Heifetz, wanting to be a good neighbor, offered to play his violin for the grandson, whereupon the old man said, "Oh—you play the fiddle, too?"

Two Musicians walked into a rustically decorated bar, where the first thing that met their eyes was a moose head hanging over the bar. Amazed, one musician turned to the other and exclaimed, "Man, that animal must have been going pretty fast when he hit the other side of the wall!"

AT A RECENT PARTY where I was a guest, I noticed that the host had a tremendous amount of hi-fi equipment—woofers, tweeters, coaxial speakers, amplifiers, tape recorders, plus sound proofing all over the walls. There was only one thing missing—a record. Then I found out that this guy didn't like music—just equipment.

A STRANGER in New York walked over to another man on the street and asked, "How can I get to Carnegie Hall?" Replied the New Yorker, "Practice, son, practice!"

ONE CONVICT told his cellmate that a very nice thing had happened in the prison in which they were inmates—the warden's daughter had just married one of the cons who was serving a life term. And the warden was a little upset—because they had eloped.

A YOUNG MAN who was very much in love with a girl and had asked her to marry him called for her one evening to take her to dinner. He was shocked when she opened the door. In the middle of her living room lay a dead horse. Noticing his expression, his fiancee said, "Well—I never said I was neat!"

DID YOU HEAR about the guy who invested all his money in the stock market? He put half his money into a paper towel company and the balance into a revolving door firm. The result: he was wiped out before he could turn around.

"Another girl, huh?"
